PANIC AND RIOTS IN BERLIN

SCHOOLS TO REOPEN MONDAY

Public Urged Not to Give Up Precautions Against Spread of Grip Epidemic

Boston schools will re-open Monday by decison of the school committee today. They have been closed for more than three weeks during the influenza-pneumonia epidemic.

Parents are urged in a statement by the committee to have no fear of contagion in sending their children back to school as normal medical supervision by the regular school doctors and nurses has been provided. The committee also urges the return to school of those of working age who sought temporary employment when the schools were closed.

Reports for the city of Boston for the first three hours today were: Deaths from grip, 16; deaths from pneumonia, three. This was a big decrease from the report of any previous day since the epidemic started.

The health department of the city of Boston today issued another bulletin to the citizens to observe all caution in regard to the influenza epidemic. While it is abating the department does not consider that it is over. Emphasis is placed on the necessity of every individual realizing this and looking out for himself.

HOW TO FIGHT PLAGUE.

Since September 8 there have been more than 3,600 deaths in Boston from influenza and pneumonia. Proper care and caution now will result in keeping these figures where they are and not piling them up still higher.

Rules laid down by the health department:

Keep away from crowds.
Live outdoors.
Keep your windows open.
Avoid crowded, badly ventilated cars.
Keep away from coughers, sneezers and spitters.
Wash your hands immediately before eating.
Eat with moderation.
Do not abuse alcoholic liquors.
Avoid overwork of body and mind.
Do not go into a room where there is influenza if you can avoid it.
If you must go into a room where there is influenza wear a proper mask while in the room and carefully wash your hands when you come out.

Salem's influenza situation is nearly cleared up, and the board of health feels confident that the epidemic is virtually over. Only nine new cases and one death were reported today for the past 24 hours. The total number of cases of illness in the city is less than 400.

FRENCH CAPTURE ACY, NEAR GERMAN BASE

Paris, Oct. 16.—The French have reached Acy, just across the Aisne River from the German key position at Rethel, according to the following communique issued by the War Office today:

"We made slight progress north of Sissonne during the night. A violent German counterattack, supported by heavy artillery fire, was repulsed by the French near St. Germainmont, north of Asfeld.

"We have taken Acy, southwest of Rethel."

'Down With Kaiser,' Cry Berlin Rioters; Turk Cabinet Out

Germany has threatened to bombard Constantinople if Turkey makes any new move to break away from the Teutonic alliance, according to dispatches today by way of Switzerland. A German fleet, composed of old Russian ships is supposed to be in the Black Sea ready to carry out the threat.

Other developments today in the peace situation were:

1. Peace riots, anti-Kaiser demonstrations and financial panic in Berlin are reported by the Central News Agency, via Amsterdam. A mob marched through Berlin streets yelling: "Down with the Kaiser and Von Hindenburg!" Hohenzollern statues were stoned, and the police battled with rioters. Essen munitions workers have struck, and the great Krupp town is placarded with posters denouncing war and starvation. Mutinies are reported in the German army in Limburg.

2. Amsterdam hears the Kaiser will return to Berlin Saturday to receive Cabinet and general staff reports. German Socialists, according to the Wolff Bureau (official German news agency), agree that Prince Max shall continue as chancellor.

3. Turkish affairs are in a whirl. Tewfik Pasha's new Ottoman cabinet has collapsed and Tewfik is replaced by Izzet Pasha. England is said to have handed Turkey an ultimatum that nothing less than unconditional surrender will be acceptable.

4. An unconfirmed dispatch via Switzerland reports that Emperor Karl of Austria has accepted the resignation of Count

Enver "Hero of Revolution."

Early in January, 1914, Enver became Minister of War. At that time Enver was thirty-two years old; like all the leading Turkish politicians of the period he came of humble stock and his popular title, "hero of the revolution," shows why Talaat and the Committee have selected him as Minister of War. Enver enjoyed something of a military reputation though, so far as I could discover, he had never achieved a great military success.

But certainly Enver did have one trait that made for success in such a distracted country as Turkey—and that was audacity. He was quick in making decisions, always ready to stake his future and his very life upon the success of a single adven-

FOE TO QUIT BRUSSELS

BOOM FOR FIGHTING FOURTH

Hurrah!
New England is at last awake!

Today's total for the fifteenth day of the "Fighting Fourth" Liberty Loan was $39,008,000.

New England responded en masse to the appeal of President Wilson and recouped its lagging total by an unprecedented spurt. The backing up of President Wilson's reply of "unconditional surrender" to German peace overtures was instant and unmistakable.

With only four more days to be heard from, New England's total is now $337,671,000. This leaves approximately $40,000,000 a day to be raised before the end of the campaign.

MUST KEEP UP DAILY DRIVE.

This means that New England must do as well as today's total during the remaining four days of the drive. Today's figure was more than three times as great as the low-water mark of yesterday.

Nothing but sustained, untiring, premeditated effort. It was pointed out by loan officials, will guarantee the putting of New England safely over the top by the 19th.

Figures from Washington were not as encouraging as local reports. The nation's total is slightly more than half realized, and $750,000,000 a day is demanded from the entire

HUNSIKER, BELGIUM'S FRIEND, DIES IN LONDON

Washington, Oct. 16.—Colonel Millard Hunsiker, one of the seven original members of the committee for relief in Belgium, is dead in London, according to a cablegram received at the Washington office of the commission today. For many years Colonel Hunsiker had represented American armament interests in Europe. When the relief commission was formed October 22, 1914, his wide business experiences proved invaluable in putting it on a firm footing. Colonel Hunsiker also was a member of the American relief committee which had charge of the work of reshaping American reforms in the United States during the first months of the war.

BRITISH FREIGHTER SUNK IN COLLISION

An Atlantic Port, Oct. 16.—An outward bound British freighter was sunk in a collision with a United States outlier here today. The crew was rescued.

The freighter was the Port Phillip, a 5,050-ton vessel, formerly of the Commonwealth and Dominion Line of London. The vessel was being used as a transport. Twenty members of the crew who jumped overboard were rescued by a harbor boat.

BULLETINS!

Copenhagen, Oct. 16.—The new Turkish cabinet, headed by Tewfik Pasha, has collapsed, said a dispatch received here today. Tewfik Pasha has been succeeded as Premier by Izzet Pasha.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Unconfirmed news agency dispatches reaching Berne declare that Emperor Karl of Austria has accepted the resignation of Count Hussarocka and entrusted Count Silva Taronka with the formation of a new cabinet, according to official cablegrams to Washington today.

Zurich, Oct. 16.—A bloody revolution is raging in Bohemia, according to information received here today. A state of siege has been proclaimed. German troops have been rushed to Prague and Pilsen to restore order. The munitions industry has been completely tied up by a general strike. The leaders of the uprising, Doctors Zukup, Kofatch, Kramrecka and Stanek, are determined to set up an independent state before peace comes.

Paris, Oct. 16.—The Germans are retreating from the Champagne district and the roads leading toward Mazieres are crowded with convoys, L'Information stated today. The fall of Nizy le Comte, nineteen miles east of Laon, has enabled the French to make further progress threatening vital German points of communication. French airmen have bombed Laonnois.

Vienna, via Basle, Oct. 16.—"We must admit that there can be no hope for peace based upon a success of arms," said Baron Burian of the Austrian Foreign Affairs Committee to a delegation of Hungarians.

ALLIES OUTFLANK GERMAN BASES

Paris, Oct. 16.—Orders for the evacuation of Brussels have already been issued by the German high command, according to dispatches reaching here today. The Echo de Paris says it understands the enemy will withdraw next week. A high German functionary in Belgium is quoted by the paper as having announced on October 9 that the evacuation would be completed within fifteen days. One by one the Germans are losing their great bases of operations and supplies on the western front, the last to go being Thourout and Menin in Flanders.

The seven-mile advance on a twenty-five-mile strip of the Belgian front has put the British in artillery range of Thielt and advanced the line to a point only ten miles from Bruges.

Bruges, being connected with Ostend and Zeebrugge, with a chain of docks, is almost as important to the Germans for operations as the seaports themselves.

Submarines are assembled at Bruges and U-boats that have returned from voyages are floated down to the Bruges docks through the canals and overhauled and outfitted there. Bruges is only eight miles from the Dutch frontier.

Wilson's Decision Under Consideration in Berlin; Response Will Be Delayed

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Oct. 16.—President Wilson's decision that Germany cannot have peace while she continues her atrocities unabated and maintains her armies in the field and her undersea assassins on the ocean, has reached Berlin. Diplomatic advices reaching here today carried that fact.

No word regarding the effect of the refusal to grasp in renewed friendship the blood-dripping hand of the Germans accompanied the report. Officials do not look for any details on this line much before the end of the week. They point out that the political situation within Germany is such that the German leaders will have to consider carefully the manner in which they make public the news.

However, diplomats and Americans generally today took occasion sharply to warn against accepting too seriously the reports of radical changes in the German government or of widespread riots in the interest of peace. The present German control has too strong a grip on the people, they say, for any serious uprising to take place.

There is, of course, as all advices to the State Department show, a concerted sentiment throughout the German press to blame the Kaiser for present conditions. But that sentiment is not strong enough yet in any way to endanger the Hohenzollern dynasty, it may grow. Officials hope so, will. But they say the United States has too much to do from the standpoint of successfully prosecuting the war to slacken efforts while waiting for possibilities.

CAMOUFLAGE CLAIMED.

Incidentally, entente diplomats who are in possession of many facts concerning the German situation that they do not desire to make public at present pointed out today that the so-called Socialist leaders who are being used by the Kaiser and the war command to camouflage the German government in an effort to make it appear Liberal are in reality are similar professional politicians who have played the game of the "All Highest" ever since he plunged the world into war.

"Political reform in Germany will be a reality only when the announcement is made that Dr. Karl Liebknecht has been released from prison and that he and his former associates are to be actual factors in shaping Germany's political future," explained one of these diplomats today.

"The Germans are talking about the anti-war leaders that they have summoned to power. Not a single name so far mentioned is that of a man who has at any time raised his voice in protest against Germany's brutal policies on land or sea. They sent Liebknecht to jail when he suggested peace on broad terms. And they still have him there so far as anyone now knows. The Socialist leaders of the Reichstag have approved the policy of frightfulness, and their elevation to cabinets posts or to positions as advisers of the Kaiser primarily is designed to fool the neutrals and Americans. Faces may have changed, but men—not yet."

This official declared that the refusal by the President to fall into a peace trap that would have allowed the German high command to have saved its armies in the field in France and Belgium was the same as striking a blow to German hopes. It will still further shatter a seriously weakened morale at home. Eventually it will have an important effect in aiding that movement for peace among the Germans themselves. But officials generally do not look for such a movement to develop until the whole force of the President's decision has had an opportunity to sink into the hearts of the German people.

REPLY SATISFIES AMERICANS.

Administration officials today commented on the general endorsement of President Wilson's decision by the people of the country. The reply apparently has satisfied the majority of Americans. There remains, of course, a very considerable element, which favors no consideration of any proposition from Germany but one of complete and unconditional surrender. This movement, officials said today, seemingly was centred in Chicago. However, officials in no way criticized the dissemination of such a sentiment at present. It was only the natural outgrowth of the bitter resentment against Germany which is now felt everywhere in the United States, they said. And, when the time comes to make real peace, the views of the President and the entente allies will prevail, they said, and these views are too well known to need additional explanation.

President Wilson had only one engagement today, that was with the war cabinet, which approves various necessary measures for speeding up the war. Much of the President's day was devoted to consideration of the latest data dealing with the Austro-Hungarian situation.

The President probably will not reply to the Austrian peace note until he has before him details of the manner in which his decision in the German appeal was received in Berlin and throughout Germany. But officials, who know his views will await with very great interest publication of that note because they believe that it may open the way for the separation of Germany and the Dual Empire.

Peace Rioters in Berlin Fight Battle With Police; Shout 'Down With Kaiser!'

Amsterdam, Oct. 16 (bulletin).—Peace riots have broken out in Berlin. A mob marched through the streets shouting "Down with the war, the Kaiser and Hindenburg." A pitched battle was fought with police. Statues of the Hohenzollerns were smashed and the residence of the burgomaster was stoned. A big peace demonstration was staged in front of the palace, another before the Hultgarins legation. Similar disorders occurred at Essen, where the workers of the great munition works are on a strike. That town is said to have been placarded with hundreds of posters reading, "We want peace," "We are starving" and "Down with war." The police were powerless to cope with the situation.

German Banking Circles Are Reported in Panic When Reply Is Received

London, Oct. 16.—A panic prevails in German banking circles and upon the Berlin Stock Exchange as a result of President Wilson's reply to the latest German peace note, said a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam today.

It added that the American answer had created "a most unfavorable impression throughout Germany."

President Wilson's declaration about leaving the terms of the armistice to the military authorities was said to have created doubt as to the good faith of the American executive.

It is understood in Amsterdam that the supreme German army command will hold a council of war at the end of the week to deliberate on the situation and concentration of the nation's resources and to consider raising the military age.

The German press considers the reply "a cold douche on the hopes for peace," said a dispatch from Copenhagen.

It was reported that Prince Max, the German Chancellor, would make his decision upon the note today.

Britain Tells Turkey Unconditional Surrender Is Her Only Peace Chance

London, Oct. 16.—It is learned from an absolutely trustworthy source that the British government has informed Turkey that nothing less than unconditional surrender will be acceptable.

It is also stated on the highest authority that Germany's position is such as to make it imperative for her to accept the allies' conditions. The British Cabinet has assembled for a session of transcendent importance.

The powers associated against Germany are preparing an outline of undiscussable terms which Germany must accept without reservation.

The powers are said to be also drafting a list of negotiable points.

The Evening News, speculating on the result of such action, says it is expected "Turkey will comply immediately."

FRENCH DOUBT SINCERITY OF GERMANS

Report Allies Prepare Specific, Undiscussable Terms to the Germans

Paris, Oct. 16.—Best informed opinion here persists that Germany is not approaching the armistice question in an attitude of sincerity, but is only seeking to avoid the consequences of defeat through Allied magnanimity upon which she evidently counts.

Consequently, it is generally held in authoritative quarters that Germany should not be granted an armistice, except on the strictest terms compatible with Allied military safety.

France is not willing for a suspension of hostilities, which would mean a suspension of the victorious allied progress, until Germany has acknowledged defeat. This she did not do in her reply to President Wilson.

The American executive, therefore, could not have written a reply more to the heart of the French people, than that which he sent to Berlin.

A series of interviews which the correspondent has had in the best-informed quarters here reveals the following conclusions:

1—Foch has known since July that Germany is defeated. Now, backed by all France, the generalissimo is unwilling to permit the Germans a respite for the purpose of realigning their still heavy forces.

2—France is thankful that President Wilson appreciates that Foch and the Allied commanders can best judge the terms of an armistice which is beyond the realms of diplomacy.

3—The Allies would have a perfect right to demand Allied occupation of the left bank of the Rhine to insure Germany's good faith before agreeing to suspend hostilities.

British Press Unanimous in Praising the Reply of President Wilson

London, Oct. 16.—The British press is unanimous in praising President Wilson's reply. The Evening Standard, however, regrets that "the strong and timely note" did not refer to "the necessary punishment of the enemy's outrages."

The Pall Mall Gazette interprets the note as meaning that "Kaiserism must go."

The Westminster Gazette praises the American executive as a spokesman of the Allied-American cause, "keeping the destruction of Prussian militarism as the central war aim."

The Evening Star says:

"Mr. Wilson demands granite guarantees. A bad armistice would mean a bad war. The Germans must choose between autocracy and liberty."

Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons that it would be "unwise for any allied government to make a statement of the terms likely to be imposed upon Germany before an armistice is granted."

"The Premier," he added, doubtless desires to make a statement on the military situation but it must depend upon the nature of the operations."

Entire French Press Compliments Wilson on His Emphatic Decision

Paris, Oct. 16.—The whole French press welcomed President Wilson's peace reply today in cordial comment.

"The speed with which the President answered Germany's note shows complete accord, and the indisputable ideas were clearly phrased," the Journal said.

The Echo de Paris says that the sending of a separate note to Austria "strikes at a bloc that must be destroyed before the future peace of Europe is assured."

Le Homme Libre (Premier Clemenceau's paper) says it is now Germany's turn to speak.

"Our cause is in good hands, and we may expect immense and rapid developments," states the Matin, adding "it is a formidable blow to the Hohenzollerns."

Germans Rush Reserves to Hold Up Americans

By International News Service

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—The Germans have rushed reinforcements to both sides of the Meuse in an effort to stem the advance of the Americans, who continue to gain ground, General Pershing reported to the War Department today in his communique for October 15.

The text of the communique follows:

"Our troops today continued their attack on both sides of the Meuse, encountering stubborn resistance from a reinforced enemy. East of the Meuse, French and American troops have gained ground. West of the river, the fighting has increased in violence and our troops have made substantial gains, including Hill 299, which changed hands three times. We have broken the Kriemhilde Stellung at new points, where our men closed with the enemy in a series of hand-to-hand encounters in which they took prisoners."

BRITISH DRIVE TEUTONS OUT OF BASES

London, Oct. 16.—The allied armies on the Flanders front are steadily extending their gains east and northeast of Ypres, and it was estimated today the advance exceeds seven miles at some points.

Twelve hundred additional prisoners have been taken on the twenty-five-mile front, the British War Office announced early today.

Menin is entirely in the hands of the British. The French have reached Lichtervelde, thirteen miles east of Dixmude. The Belgians have advanced to Wynendaele wood, 11½ miles southeast of Ostend.

British troops gained slightly during the night in the Douai and Lille sectors, the War Office also announced today.

(The British are now only three miles from Lille and are virtually in the outskirts of Douai.)

The text of the report reads:

"On the Flanders front the allies have captured 1,200 more prisoners.

"The Belgians have reached Wynendaele wood and Thorout.

"The French have reached Lichtervelde and the British have occupied Menin.

"Our patrols advanced slightly during the night in the Lille and Douai sectors."

Menin is eleven miles north of Lille and is of immense military importance owing to the number of roads which enter the city. In addition to the highways it is the converging point for two railway lines running from Courtrai, Roulers, Turcoing and Lille.

In addition to the prisoners many guns have been captured from the Germans.

ALLIES TOPPLE GERMAN HUMPTY DUMPTY IN JUST THREE MONTHS

TURN CAME WHEN U.S. BOYS HIT HARD

Now German High Command Has Lost All It Won This Year and More, Too

"Humpty Dumpty sat on the wall,
Humpty Dumpty had a great fall.
All the King's forces
And all the King's men
Cannot put Humpty Dumpty together again."
—(Mother Goose Melodies.)

We may not have quoted the old nursery jingle precisely. But the idea is just right when it comes to summing up what the Allies have done to the German war machine during the past three months in France.

Humpty Dumpty—the German High Command—was sitting on the wall of that supremacy which comes from gain on gain.

He was less than forty miles from Paris from which civilians had begun to move.

He had pocketed and all but taken Ypres. He was almost at the gates of Amiens. His Marne salient bit deeply into the bending Allied line, heaving itself toward Paris with apparently irresistible force. The St. Mihiel salient still sunk its huge fang into the Lorraine front. The Hindenburg line and its continued system of defences vaunted as the greatest ever known, stretched their sullen length down through Flanders, Artois, Picardy and across the Champagne.

As Marshal Haig said it: "Our backs are to the wall."

HOPED TO HOLD.

It was not even expected that the Allies would do more than hold. It was not expected that the great Allied offensive would get under way until the Spring of 1919.

Meanwhile the German front was being fed steadily by means of elaborate and unhampered lines of communication. By these lines assault troops could be shifted from one point to another at ease—from the Ypres sector down to the Amiens front, thence to the Marne, back north again and so on.

The German attacks fell here and there like mighty strokes of a huge hammer swung by a Titan. To meet these hammer strokes the straining Allied resources bent their utmost energy.

The most mild of the Allied line then was: "It bends, but it does not break."

FORCE FOR BACK.

In the middle of July, when the gallant American Marines met, held and rolled back the Teuton shock troops at Chateau-Thierry, began the movement that was to send the German Humpty-Dumpty crashing down from his great advantage.

The war is not won. But the end is in view. The story is told in the beating back of the German battle front; the ground recaptured and the number of men and guns taken by the allies.

For example:

The German menace to Paris has disappeared, since more than eighty-five miles stand between the French capital and the nearest enemy.

The Marne salient has disappeared. The St. Mihiel salient has followed the same way.

The northern salients, threatening the Channel coast, have likewise been crushed back until huge Allied salients have literally reversed the process.

DRIVE LINES TO EAST.

In front of Ypres, whose capture seemed imminent last Spring, the allies have shoved their lines eastward so as to form the northern side of a deep pocket, now known as the Lille-Lens-Douai salient.

The terrific smash of the Franco-American-British troops on the Cambrai-St. Quentin front brought about the fall of these strongholds, then of Laon itself and the evacuation of the St. Gobain massif.

The Germans are being steadily driven from Belgian Flanders. The enemy's hold on his U-boat bases at Ostend and Zeebrugge is threatened more and more by the Franco-British-Belgian advance, which now seems headed toward Ghent. Lille is fast being outflanked from the north by this same wedge.

WHERE ALLIES ARE DRIVING THE KAISER'S HORDES

White space on map shows the ground gained by the allies since the great counter-offensive began last July, when the American soldiers smashed the Prussian guard at Chateau-Thierry.
—and the German high command has lost more than it won in the drives earlier in the year, but all chance of victory as well. The spotted line indicates the farthest 1918 advance of the Kaiser's troops; the solid black line marks approximately the present front, on which Generalissimo Foch is forcing back the enemy.

which began on the Argonne forest-Meuse River front yesterday.

The hole in the Kriemhilde line was widened and the gains won yesterday were made more secure. The biggest gain was made by an American division that crossed the Aire east of Grand Pre and advanced a mile north of the town.

Grand Pre is still held by the Germans.

It had previously been reported that French patrols entered the city.)

The same division that crossed the Aire captured St. Juvin early in the afternoon. Eighty prisoners were taken there.

In the face of violent artillery and machine-gun fire other American units smashed ahead 300 yards, widening the breach in the Kriemhilde line, the Germans' second line of defence northwest of Verdun.

French and Belgians in Flanders Drive Cut Vital Railroad Lines

The British are a bare three miles from the German stronghold of Lille and have Douai bottled up. There is a temporary pause in the big-scale infantry operations east of Cambrai.

On both sides of the Meuse River the Americans are continuing their attacks, and despite the presence of strong American reinforcements have made progress on both sides of the stream and have broken through the Kriemhilde line at several points.

The Germans are putting up the most desperate resistance between the Argonne forest and the Meuse plain, for general von der Maritz, commander in that zone, is quoted as saying that "Germany's fate depends upon the German lines holding in this vital sector."

Should the Americans break through north of Verdun, they could compel a retreat of the whole German army, for they would be in a position to cut the main lines of communication behind the German front. Also, the Germans would be forced from the Briey-Longwy iron fields, which they have been utilizing since they invaded France. In addition, a retirement northeast of Verdun would enable the Americans to work into German territory north of Metz.

The French are keeping up their methodical advance northeast of Laon and are now menacing Guise and Marle.

Germany is feeling keenly her losses in men and guns, and it was reported from Amsterdam today that the German army chiefs will hold a council of war to consider raising the military age. In two days the Flanders front the Germans lost nearly 13,000 prisoners and upwards of 100 guns.

And Now the Bay State Wants a Ten-Cent Fare

THE PETITION.

Bay State Street Railway Company has petitioned Massachusetts Public Service Commission to raise first zone fares from six to ten cents beginning November 10.

SOME BAY STATE COMPANY SALARIES.

	In 1917	Now
President Patrick F. Sullivan	$20,000.00	$20,000
General Manager Robert B. Goff	15,000.00	15,000
First Vice-President Robert H. Stearns	18,000.00	18,000
Treasurer Charles R. Rockwell	10,000.00	10,000
Superintendent of motor power	9,166.66	6,500

A COMPARISON.

Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, one of the brainiest business men in the United States, who runs the country's vast financial system and railroads at an annual salary of	$12,000
Secretary of War Newton D. Baker is handling the affairs of the great United States war machine at a salary of	12,000
Postmaster-General Albert S. Burleson operates Uncle Sam's big postal system and the telegraph and telephone systems of the entire country for the annual sum of	12,000
Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels handles thousands of men and hundreds of ships of the United States Navy for which he receives	12,000

WHO PAYS?

The additional four cents per passenger from the tired strap-hanger of the shoe factories in Lynn, Taunton and Brockton, of the textile mills in New Bedford, Fall River, Lawrence and Lowell and of the war workers in the Bethlehem Steel plants in Quincy and the factories in Salem and Newburyport, will go a long way to keep up the payroll of the Bay State officials.

MAN POWER BILL OF SIX BILLIONS BEFORE HOUSE

Deficiency Appropriation Measure Gives Wider Powers for Carrying Out War Aims

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 16.—With the largest deficiency appropriation bill ever presented to an American Congress, the United States this afternoon let the whole world know that she is prepared to use her vast financial resources to the limit to smash the German military autocracy.

For the American military establishment, under the new man-power program, there was recommended a total of $6,149,845,784.57, or nearly the entire amount of $6,843,725,666.66 in cash and contract authorizations proposed for all purposes.

Two sweeping provisions, involving radical changes in the nation's war administration, were included in the bill as it was favorably reported to the House by Representative Sherley of Kentucky, chairman of the House appropriations committee.

SALVAGE COMMISSION.

One authorizes the President to create a commission of seven persons to investigate, control and dispose of or utilize all property belonging to the United States, particularly those articles which may not be used, and to recommend to Congress what use or disposition shall be made of the same in the interests of the government and the American people.

The other empowers the United States shipping Board "to acquire, construct, establish or extend any plant, and to purchase, requisition, or otherwise acquire title to or use of land, improved or unimproved, and to make any and all contracts or leases to private individuals or interests for this purpose, of such amounts and upon such terms as the Board may deem necessary or proper."

NAVY GETS $167,217,775.

The board now possesses only the power to "requisition" or "take over" such plants or lands as it may deem necessary for the shipbuilding program.

The bill also greatly broadens the powers of the shipping board in such a way as to permit government control of all dredges, marine railways and piers or docks, as well as shipyards.

Army and contract authorizations amounting to $167,217,775.25 for the "Navy proper" of ships and the establishment are also provided in the bill, which carries recommendations totaling $20,174,183.25.

Ingelmunster-Courtrai Road Cut by Belgians; French Enter Routers

By JOHN T. PARKERSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the British Army on the Flanders Front, Oct. 16.—Night—Belgian troops have cut the Ingelmunster-Courtrai road a mile and a half north of the latter city.

When the French entered Routers they found the city less damaged than Admiral had been. A French major, surrounding himself with a few civilians, played the "Marseillaise" on a piano he found. There are some German prisoners in the crowd that looked on.

Twelve hundred civilians were liberated when Routers was taken.

Northwest of Courtrai rows of enemy pill boxes were encountered and another row of barbed wire entanglements built to great depths.

Little damage had been done to the country around Routers.

SALVATIONISTS BRAVE FOE SHELLS

Paris, Sept. 25.—(By mail)—Two Salvation Army lassies just back from the front after months of work helping our soldiers, have as thrilling a memory of the great German July offensive as any of the troops who faced that final surge of the foe.

Ensign Evelyn Cory, Captain Violet McAllister of Portland, Me., and her sister, Alice, braved artillery, airplane, machine gun fire and gas attacks, rather than retire and deprive the American doughboys of aid and comfort.

In the bright lexicon of their stout hearts there is no such word as quit. They are over there doing the good work, just as are the Y. M. C. A. workers, the K. of C. host, the Jewish Welfare representatives, the American Librarians and the Y. W. C. A. girls. What danger comes along is merely an incident, not to be noticed.

The McAllister sisters were stationed at M—— with an American division. Word was sent from the front that the town was to be bombarded heavily. Officers sought to prevail on the girls to go back to safety. But they preferred to wait. They did not wait long. With the dying twilight the enemy guns opened on the town with a tremendous burst of fire. High explosive, shrapnel, gas shells rained down. Aerial bombs fell with terrible thunder. An orderly was dispatched from headquarters ordering the girls to evacuate the town or remain in their dugouts.

"We choose to remain," was the word the orderly carried back.

Two days of this inferno and the town was a shattered heap of ruins. The commanding officer told the lassies that they must go to a place of safety. With many protests they started on an eight-mile walk to the Salvation Army zone headquarters. For the greater part of the way shells swished over their heads or blew up great geysers of earth in the fields about them. But they made it. And now they are ready to go back.

"It was delightful," related one of the girls "to hear the soldiers shouting good luck after us. They poured out of the dugouts to tell us how they would miss us. It was a dreadful night for them, poor fellows.

Durazzo, Great Austrian Naval Base, Captured by Italo-Allied Warships

London, Oct. 16.—The important Albanian port of Durazzo has been captured by an Italo-Allied fleet, it is officially announced by the War Office. Strong forces were landed at the port and vast stores of material fell into the victors' hands.

A Vienna official announces that the Austrians have evacuated Durazzo.

The way to this feat was paved by the recent Allied-American naval dash in which the forts of the naval stronghold were rendered virtually impotent and a number of Austrian warships anchored in the harbor were sunk.

American submarine chasers rendered invaluable service in that exploit.

AVIATOR WILLIS ESCAPES FROM GERMAN CAMP

Boston and Mansfield Flier Safe in Switzerland; 70 Americans in "Break"

Boston heard with gratification today that Corporal Harold B. Willis, the heroic Boston and Mansfield aviator in the Lafayette Escadrille, had escaped from a German prison camp into Switzerland. In his flying career, Willis had been cited for bravery, and had brought down at least nine Boche planes.

A dispatch from Berne, Switzerland, announced that seventy American prisoners effected a concerted "break" last Sunday from the German prison camp at Villingen.

Willis and two more of these seventy have reached Switzerland. The other two are:

Lieutenant Edouard Isaacs, U. S. N., of Portsmouth, Va., who was captured when the transport, President Lincoln was sunk by a submarine, and George Puryear of Memphis, Tenn., rank not given.

Willis and Isaacs escaped on Sunday, but Puryear made his getaway the day before. Possibly the three met later in their flight into Switzerland, for their arrival in that neutral country is bulletined in one message.

WON FRENCH HONORS.

Corporal Willis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Willis of Mansfield. His father is connected with publicity activities of the Christian Science organization.

Corporal Willis entered Harvard College with the class of 1912. He left college before graduation, however, to go into business. He went to France early in 1915 as a member of an American ambulance unit. While serving in that unit he was decorated with the French Croix de Guerre for conspicuous bravery.

In June, 1917, Willis was transferred to the Lafayette Escadrille, the French Army flying corps composed of spirited American youths, since then he has been cited several times for bravery. He was promoted to the rank of corporal.

In May, 1917, Willis was reported to have had a fall from his machine. But he escaped injury. He was flying in a three-man plane with Lieutenant William Thaw of Pittsburg and Captain Thenault, the French commander of the Escadrille.

While the plane was speeding at 140 miles an hour it crashed to earth and was wrecked. But the three occupants had marvellous escapes from harm.

In August, 1917, a report came that Willis had been killed when his machine was shot down behind the German lines. He had been taking part in a big aerial raid over the German lines. Two groups of fliers from the Lafayette Escadrille took part in that raid. One group was led by Lieutenant Raoul Lufbery, the noted American "Ace," who later was killed in action.

WAS REPORTED KILLED.

When the report came that Willis had been killed in the fall of his machine, his mother refused to accept that report as final. Her faith was justified in later news which came of Willis being in a German prison camp. With the news came details of the manner in which he came to be taken. In Willis' squadron in this raid were Aviators Parsons and Walter Lovell, the latter of Newtonville and a chum of Willis.

Willis was attacked by four Boche machines. Observers saw his machine fall to earth in spirals. He managed, a short distance from the ground, to right his machine enough to lessen the shock of the landing. His machine was smashed, but Willis' luck stood by him again, so that he was not hurt, although he was taken prisoner.

During his captivity he wrote several interesting letters home.

Tad Called the Turn on Fighting German Twelve Years Ago

"Tad," the cartoonist and sport writer of nation-wide fame, called the turn on the fighting Teuton twelve years ago. His "Fable of the Fighting German," printed in the Boston AMERICAN of March 5, 1906, described a Fritzy who was a "nut on fighting" until he met a regular wrapper. Then the Teuton "guy" desired an armistice for repairs. For all the world it was like the situation in the World War today. Here's what "Tad" wrote:

FABLE OF THE FIGHTING GERMAN.

By Tad.

Once upon a time there was a German who was a nut on fighting. He worked as a sparring partner for fighters in Frisco and was brier sweet in a gymkasium. He was one of those fellows who thought that no one in the world had it on him if they were hitting easy. He beat up a few joiblies in the little room and got to collect a pretty fair name.

His had a manager named Patsy Corrigan. Patsy was well known as the "human tub," but he knew a fighter when he saw one, and took the German around to introduce him. The German said he was from Texas and they had to send him back to steer him all right and boosted him like a new breakfast food. He was pretty fair in the gym and Pat thought him a good dark horse to spring at some fight up in the country.

At Vallejo, which was some distance from Frisco, the sailors used to pull off fights every week, and he doped this out as the place to show his German from Texas.

NUMEROUS AS COBBLES.

A warship has just arrived in the navy yard up there, and sailors were as numerous as cobbles in Frisco. They had advertised a big fight for the next week, and were looking around for a man to fight the champion of the navy. Patsy rolled the glims over the sheet, turned around with a wink for his fighter, and wrote him say-ing he had a man who was only too glad to mingle with the deck scrubber. The match was made, the German trained like a wonder and the party started up to Vallejo for the scrap.

There was lots of German money around—Patsy told his friends of the cinch. He said it was to be a watermelon cutting and that they had better get in on it. They backed up the wagon, unloaded the green and just waited to collect from the sailors.

It was all over, already but the bowling for the wise ones. They knew what was coming to the sailor, but held the laugh in until after it was all over. The sailors were the same way, too, but they looked a bit frightened.

At the ringside there was much excitement. Both men had entered the ring, and the German was launching his head off. He called the sailor and the latter looked to be such a rum that he just couldn't help it.

The gong rang and they started. The German didn't seem able to get going. The sailor drifted over, his way and pelted him from one side of the ring to the other. On one eye the German had a lump that looked like a ripe plum. The other was closed tight and looked as though someone had poured hot water in it. His beak was bloody and he drew his breath like a soda water fountain. He had no more chance than a snowball in Hades, but he took all that came his way. The sailors were yelling, the seconds were throwing water and it looked more like a slaughter than a boxing bout.

The gong rang at the close of the first round.

The German walked to his corner, climbed under the ropes and started down the steps toward his dressing room.

"Hey," yelled Patsy Corrigan, "ain't you going to fight any more?"

The German, with his hand on his head turned, and with a weak smile, chirped, "Yes, but not any more tonight."

HE SAID—ENOUGH IS SUFFICIENT.

I SAID—THERE ARE MOMENTS WHEN ONE WANTS TO BE ALONE.

THE WORLD SAID—AND THIS WAS ONE OF THEM.

MOTOR STOCKS ARE MARKET FEATURES

Studebaker was a feature in the New York market. Motor stocks, oil and shipping issues were strong, coppers firm, steel stocks and war stocks generally were weak. The market was irregular.

U. S. Steel started at 108¾, gained ⅝, to 109, receded to 107⅝, off ⅝, then rallied to 108, finishing it sold off 2¼ at 79⅝; Crucible Steel lost ⅝, at 85⅛; Baldwin Locomotive lost 1⅝, at 75⅝.

Anaconda sold up ⅜ to 71½. Inspiration ⅛ to 54½ and Utah Copper ⅞ to 84⅝. American Smelting sold 83⅜, up 1⅜. Reading gained ¼ at 90. Southern Railway ⅝ at 20⅜. Canadian Pacific was off 1⅜ at 119.

Mexican Petroleum ranged between 117⅝ and 119½, up 2⅜; Texas Company between 191½ and 194, up 2; Sinclair Oil sold 36¼, up ⅝, and Pierce Oil 19⅛, up ⅜.

Studebaker opened 65⅞ and sold up to 69⅝, a gain of 4⅝; Maxwell was up 2⅛, at 34; and Willys-Overland 1⅜, at 23½. Marine pfd. rose 2⅜, to 117⅛, and the common 1⅜, to 32¼.

Sumatra lost 2½, at 111⅜, and Cigar Stores ¼, at 102½. Tobacco Products advanced ⅜, to 72⅜. Small losses were made by Corn Products 43⅛; American Can 44; Car & Foundry, 83½, and Midvale, 47⅜.

There was more activity and some improvement in the second hour. Union Pacific sold at 138⅜, up 1⅜.

Mass. Electric pfd. was strong again in Boston, selling up 1⅜ to 51⅜, before selling at 16; Boston Elevated sailed ⅜, at 74⅜; Boston & Maine was unchanged at 24. U. S. Smelting sold at 44⅜, up 1; Swift & Co. 118, up ⅜. American Telephone lost 1 at 108½ and United Fruit ⅜, at 143¾.

Peace stocks were buoyant at midday. U. S. Steel at 109, was up ⅜; other steel issues showed losses. U. S Rubber was up nearly 5 points, 61½; Canadian Pacific sold 122⅜, up ⅜; Southern Pacific 91⅝, up 1¼; New Haven 43¾, up 1⅝; Ohio Cities Gas 41⅞, up 1⅝; Sinclair 37⅛, up 2; and Mexican Petroleum 149, up 4½, at a record price.

Fairbanks gained 2⅜, at 57⅜; U. S. Smelting 1¼, at 48, and Boston & Maine ⅝, at 34½. Mass. Electric pf. sold 116⅝.

SUMMONS SIXTY IN TAGUE FIGHT AGAINST 'FITZ'

Commission Calls Voters on Whose Names "Floaters" Are Alleged to Have Cast Ballots

Summonses for sixty voters in the Tenth Congressional District, upon whose names "floaters" are alleged by Attorney Joseph F. O'Connell to have voted in the Tague-Fitzgerald fight for Congress, were issued today by the Ballot Commission and turned over to Sergeant-at-Arms Thomas F. Pedrick to be served. They include the names of twenty-two men in the service, some of whom are said to be in France.

A list of voters nearly as long will be supplied to the Ballot Commissioners when this one is exhausted, former Congressman O'Connell, counsel for Congressman Peter F. Tague, promised the commission.

Congressman Tague is seeking to have the election of ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald to Congress set aside on the ground that it is illegal. "Floaters" are alleged to have voted upon these names in Ward 5, known as "Lomasney's ward," and Ward 6 in the South End.

A sharp clash between Attorney O'Connell and Henry V. Cunningham, chairman of the commission, marked the effort by the former to have the soldiers' names omitted from the summonses. He declared it would save time if this were done, but Chairman Cunningham insisted that summonses be served in all cases.

Clashes between O'Connell and Chairman Cunningham were frequent today in what is hoped to be the final day of the hearing. The commission will sit this afternoon and tonight if necessary to wind up the hearing.

Sergeant Pedrick on receiving the summonses put a big staff at work to serve them. Congressman Tague was on the witness stand at the resumption of the hearing.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking dope, or trying to patch up poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in the mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested foods, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

STATUETTE AS LOAN PRIZE FOR WOMEN

Sculptor Offers Bas-Relief to Committee of Metropolitan Boston Raising Largest Sum

A symbolic bas relief, designed and executed by Mrs. Bartlett Harwood (Sabra Batchelder) has been offered by the sculptor to the Women's Liberty Loan Committee of Metropolitan Boston to stimulate competition in Loan subscriptions in the various suburban communities.

The central figure typifies victory calling across the sea to the boys "over there" that she is coming if those behind her will but follow. She is the spirit of American Womanhood speaking for the silent slain who lie at her feet. She speaks for the women of outraged Europe who have borne the horrors of war and for the vast army of the dead who have laid down their lives in freedom's cause.

The bas relief will be given to the women's committee of Greater Boston, town or city which raises the largest per cent. of its local quota.

With the statuette will go the accompanying letter, which was received by the Women's Liberty Loan Committee from the wife of Secretary of State Robert Lansing at Washington. The letter reads:

"I have learned with interest of the approaching competition between the cities and towns composing Metropolitan Boston in connection with the campaign for the Fourth Liberty Loan. It is a unique contest which appeals not only to local pride, but to the patriotic sentiments of all citizens who desire to do their part in aiding the government to accomplish its great task of winning the war.

"If the American people appreciating the increasing needs of our army and navy, respond with the subscription as generously and loyally as they have in the past, we can look forward confidently to the future. That every community within the limits of Metropolitan Boston will do its duty I feel convinced, and I hope that you will not forget to let me know the result of the competition.

"With my warm regards and best wishes for your success in the coming campaign, I am, very cordially yours,

(Signed) "ELEANOR LANSING."

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.—Advertisement.

ITALIAN ALPINI TO BOOST LOAN IN BOSTON

Seventy Veterans of Crack Troops to Be Given Big Reception Friday

Seventy members of the Italian Alpini, picked Italian troops, veterans of the campaigns in the Italian and Austrian Alps since 1915, will arrive in Boston on Friday to work in the interests of the Liberty Loan. They will receive an enthusiastic welcome from thousands of Italians.

They will arrive at the South Station at 12:26 p. m., and will be accompanied by fourteen buglers, in addition to the seventy men. A committee representing 10,000 members of Boston's Italian societies, of which Dominick Mollica is president, will meet the visitors. They will form in line of march and parade from the South Station to the Copley-Plaza, where luncheon will be served from 2 to 4 o'clock.

At that hour they will march to Hotel Bellevue, where they will meet the members of the Liberty Loan committee, and where a dinner will be given them. They will then be divided into squads to be sent to different parts of the State, for the final drive for the Fourth Liberty Loan.

On Saturday a parade will form at the Copley-Plaza at 11:30 o'clock and the Italians will march to North End Park, where a big Liberty Loan rally will be held. From that point they will go to the Common, where an exhibition of drills will be given and where work in the interests of the loan will continue.

Epidemic 'Torpedoes' Vermont State Platform

Just as the influenza situation seems to be improving in New England the news comes that the epidemic has torpedoed the Republican State platform in Vermont.

The Republican State Executive Committee voted at Burlington not to set up a State platform because the epidemic has barred political conventions under the public assembly ban.

Individual candidates will announce their own platforms, but for the first time in Vermont politics, there will be no party ones.

State election comes November 5. Dr. William B. Mayo of Northfield, Democratic nominee, has come out for national prohibition. Percival W. Clement of Rutland, Republican nominee, is much opposed to such a thing.

TENT HOSPITALS WIN PRAISE OF EXPERT

By HAZEL CANNING.

"Since I have seen what results Surgeon-General Brooks has accomplished in Massachusetts with his open-air hospitals, I shall from now on, talk tent hospitals for influenza and nothing but tent hospitals."

So said Captain Warren F. Draper of the Federal Health Service at Washington, sent to Boston by Surgeon-General Rupert Blue to help in the influenza epidemic. For the honorable council rode to five camps to see how the State was caring for its sick. And they came back with praise for one man, Surgeon-General Brooks, hot on their lips.

"If Surgeon-General Brooks had had the tents to house all the influenza cases in the State, there would have been no deaths from neglect," agreed Councillors Lewis R. Sullivan, Richard G. Andrews, Fred Tarr and Senator Brown.

"Pennsylvania and Ohio sent a commission to study the surgeon-general's tent hospitals, and both those States have adopted them," explained Dr. Eugene Kelley, State Health Commissioner. For it was the surgeon-general's day, when, as Councillor Lewis R. Sullivan remarked, "he is getting the credit for some of the work he has put in, anonymously so far."

INSPECTION AT WALTHAM.

"You never realize the work that has been done, till you have seen for yourself," said Councillor Andrews. "We shall so report to the Governor."

The inspection began at Waltham, where Surgeon General Brooks showed his two latest innovations for the care of Spanish influenza patients—the Brooks cubicle, a portable wooden hospital ward, and the Brooks pneumonia jacket.

"In this way," the surgeon-general explained. "In the coldest weather tents are too cold. But we must keep patients in the air. Hence, the cubicles, to house two patients each; then nine feet of space; then another cubicle, and so on, as many as are needed. Let down the three sides by day and put them up at night."

The nine feet between each cubicle was explained ingeniously. Spanish influenza is a disease transmitted by sneezes and coughs. Surgeon-General Brooks had tests made at Tufts College; a student, coughing as hard as he might, drove the germs seven feet.

So they built the cubicles nine feet apart, and all danger of infection was removed.

Then the pneumonia jacket. "If we keep out in the open air, we must keep warm," explained Dr. Brooks. "Therefore we took crepe paper, filled it with cotton batting, edged it with tape and strapped it about the patients. Paper keeps out the cold and wards off the pneumonia, and still they get the air."

NINE IN FAMILY SICK.

But there was a human side to the inspection of the State's tent hospitals when the Council rode to view. There was the family of nine children, who, at Lawrence, lay side by side, but raised little black heads to smile when Councillor Sullivan said "Good morning." And there was the patient who, had a temperature of 105. But at the time of the Council's visit it had fallen to normal.

"Hello," waved the girl, "my temperature is normal today."

"What it's normal," waved back the Governor's councillors, "good luck."

So, past wind-swept tented cities, where guards paced, and nurses served, and patients stretched out for their sun bath, the caravande proceeded. The cities visited were Waltham, Lawrence, Haverhill, Ipswich and Gloucester. And everywhere came back the report, "We are past the worst; we are on the mend."

"And," said Councillors Sullivan and Andrews, "there are three to be thanked for the way Massachusetts has handled this epidemic—Adjutant-General Stevens and his State Guard, and Surgeon-General Brooks. Let them come in for a little of the credit which has lingered so long in the coming. You cannot make it too strong," said the Councillors, "Massachusetts is in excellent keeping. We are amazed at all that we have seen."

CONNECTICUT TO MAKE LOAN DRIVE SATURDAY

Hartford, Oct. 16.—Governor Marcus H. Holcomb has appointed Saturday, October 19, as Forehing Liberty Loan Day. In his proclamation Governor Holcomb asks that the day be devoted to a universal effort to subscribe for the Fourth Liberty Loan and to make the record for Connecticut first among the States of the Union.

Washington, Oct. 14.—"I'm sorry for you, boys, but you can't pull a war picture with the Secretary of War left out. Can't play Hamlet with the Prince of Denmark left out. See?"

This was the kindly statement of an officer to the besiegers of a great "Over the Top" life-size picture which decorates the Esplanade in front of the State, War and Navy Building. American soldiers are depicted on it, charging over ground marked here and there with helmets, guns, knapsacks and other impediments left by the Germans in their retreat.

It had been announced, although unofficially, that President Wilson and the Cabinet were to stand in front of the picture and be photographed, and the camera men and authors of inspiring war landscape were present at attention.

Just at that time it was sadly announced that the President and Cabinet would not be present. Secretary Baker was not able to be present, so the scene was called off.

NEWPORT "NAVY DAY" BOOMS LIBERTY LOAN

Newport, Oct. 12.—This is "Navy Day" for the Fighting Fourth Liberty Loan, and the local training station is the scene of a big drive. A parade started events, and the station was turned over to the men by Captain Edward M. Campbell and Commander Charles W. Crosse for the day.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

If cross, bilious, sick, feverish, or full of cold, take no chances.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Advertisement.

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.—Advertisement.

NEW ENGLAND SPEEDS UP LOAN IN ANSWER TO THE PRESIDENT

UNITE TO WIN FINAL VICTORY

Today's Total Shows Big Plunge Ahead; but Forty Million a Day Must Come

country during the ensuing four days.

Tremendous effort is called for to offset the insidious peace poison which has seriously diminished the pace of loan subscriptions and only hours are left to avert the nation out of the present slump.

BIGGEST SINGLE DAY.

Of today's New England total, Massachusetts subscribed more than half of which, in turn, Boston subscribed $10,745,000.

The splendid come-back following upon the week of discouragement totals put new life and vigor into the entire loan organization and fired loan workers everywhere with renewed zeal.

Today's figure was the largest single day's total reported since the $44,000,000 of the opening day of the present drive.

The day's report, with all but 99 banks of the 824 represented, is as follows:

	Last day.	Total.
Maine	2,109,000	16,779,000
N. H.	1,224,000	11,306,000
Vt.	364,000	8,481,000
R. I.	3,750,000	31,309,000
Cons.	11,165,000	58,213,000
Mass.	20,476,000	211,583,000
	$39,068,000	$337,671,000

MANY PLACES OVER.

In New England 193 cities and towns had subscribed their quotas even today. Of these Vermont has 156, Maine 148, New Hampshire 86, Connecticut 55, Massachusetts 52, Rhode Island 7.

In Massachusetts Newton is the largest community with a quota of $5,774,000. Others are Attleboro, Boston, Bedford, Barre, Dover, Holden, Northbridge and Russell.

In Maine—Kennebunkport, Oldtown, North Haven.

In New Hampshire—Peru, Shaftsbury, Sharon, Bridgewater, Cabot, Northfield, Greensborough, Newport, North Troy, Barre, Fair Haven, Lunenburg.

In Connecticut—Old Lyme, Old Saybrook, Simsbury, Tariffville, Avon, Rockville, Newington, Windsor, Mansfield, Chester, Canton.

In New Hampshire, Hampton Falls and Newcastle.

The wool trade of Boston, which has been conducting its campaign in the fourth loan quietly, but with thoroughness, reported today that it had in with $9,100,000, which is nearly four millions over what it had on the third loan. It is hoped to reach $10,000,000 before the end of the week.

The Publicity Committee says that any householders or merchants who have not a "Lend" sign in their windows, and desire to display them for the remainder of the week, can obtain a limited number by applying at No. 30 Milk street.

N. Penrose Hallowell, executive chairman of the Liberty loan committee of New England, says:

"We have received complaints from numerous sources that subscriptions to the fourth Liberty loan are being reported so slowly that the Liberty Loan committee is undoubtedly holding back some of the figures.

ALL FIGURES GIVEN OUT.

"This is absolutely not true. The Federal Reserve Bank and the Liberty Loan Committee are not only reporting every subscription of which they have record, but are urging in the most forceful way they know how that individuals and banks hurry their subscriptions so as to fill New England's quota as soon as possible.

"This campaign is in a very critical condition, and as stated on the opening day, we are giving the public all the information which we ourselves hold. It is true that there are a great many subscriptions of which we have been told, but which have not yet come through the Federal Reserve Bank; but on the other hand, New England's quota cannot possibly be raised unless very substantial additional subscriptions are pledged immediately.

"The reports yesterday were the most disappointing we have yet had. The community must act at once."

BOSTON SHARES CREDIT.

John D. Rockefeller has requested that $10,000 of his subscription placed through the Equitable Trust Company of New York be credited to Seal Harbor, Me. Donald D. Mackay, head of the Department of Credits, pointed out that this subscription cannot be credited for the reason that it was placed in another Federal Reserve district and the only manner by which subscriptions are placed can be credited to communities in the district is by having them filed directly by the subscriber with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The following subscriptions have been filed with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York for the credit of Boston and other New England cities:

Mutual Life Insurance Company, $5,000; National Life Insurance Company, $5,500; General Chemical Company, 5,000; Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company of Newark, N. J., $200,000; United States Rubber Company, $315,; Y. Equitable Insurance Company, $250,- 00; Prudential Insurance Company, $537,000; Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company. Placed in charge of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia) $25,000.

WARD AND CITY FIGURES.

The Boston Ward and City Committee is pushing the campaign for the last week with tremendous activity. Thus far the reports up to noon today show that the ward and city chairmen have secured subscriptions to canvass of $7,469,250, from 35,172 subscribers.

Romney Spring of Ward 8 leads the whole city with a total of $2,370,- 450 subscribed. Ward 3, J. P. Lomasney, chairman, has the highest number of individual subscribers, 8,138. The returns from the entire district are:

Chairmen and Wards.	Total No. subs. subscribed.	Total amt.
William L. Maguire, Ward 1, and William E. S. Heffer, Ward 2.	633	$90,150
Patrick J. Tealing, Ward 3, and William E. Carney, Ward 4.	1,159	101,200
Joseph P. Lomasney, Ward 3	8,138	2,251,750
F. C. Cabana, Ward 4	273	52,500
Charles H. Innes, Ward 7	1,243	176,650
Romney Spring, Ward 8	2,252	2,370,650

P. J. Donoghue, Ward 18	1,604	124,150
Jos. Wesserling, Ward 19	1,898	98,250
Sanford Bates, Ward 20	898	75,850
John H. Howell, Ward 21	1,121	71,850
Andrew J. Peters, Ward 22	855	127,900
Robert T. Fowler, Ward 23	1,586	242,500
H. H. Morse, Ward 24	809	102,100
Robert A. Wilson, Ward 25	961	277,200
Will. S. Fowler, Ward 26	768	87,450
Totals	35,172	$7,469,250

Signers of pledge cards who are subscribing through this committee will aid the campaign very much if they go at once to the banks and complete their applications without waiting for notification from the banks.

The South Boston Trust Company agrees to the 4,000 additional individual subscribers before the end of the campaign.

The Liberty Mutual Insurance Company previously subscribed for $200,- 000, of which $125,000 was credited to Boston. They have today subscribed for an additional $100,000, all to be credited to Boston, making a total subscription of $300,000, $225,000 of which is credited to Boston.

Holden, Leonard & Company, $100,- 000, of which $75,000 comes to Boston.

GREEKS DO THEIR BIT.

The Committee of Citizens of Greek Birth or Descent are meeting notable success in their active campaign on the fourth loan.

At the headquarters, No. 65 Washington street, open from 1 to 5 p. m. each day for campaigning, already there are listed subscriptions of nearly $115,000.

The women allied with the committee have been of notable assistance, having secured thus far $16,000 in all. The canvassers who have been most active are the Misses Anna Triantaphydou and Angelike Dourpoulou and Mrs. Elene Zevita.

The Albany street shops of the Boston Elevated are shooting at the highest possible mark on the fourth loan. Flying their 100 per cent. industrial pennant, the men have started to double up, adding another 100 per cent.

The leader in the double-up movement is "Old Joe the Pole," who has been fighting for liberty in two actual wars. He fought in the Polish revolution and fought again in the Civil War in this country.

"At 70 he has proved the inspiration of this campaign, by using his own money. Joe split into two teams to go to wage earners who double their original subscription to this loan. Fortune will decide the subscription books are put into a hat, and the high and low numbers draw the prizes.

An interesting and instructive circular has been published by the Liberty Loan Committee giving striking examples of the advantages accruing to both individuals and corporations through the reduction of taxable income on account of money borrowed to buy Liberty Loan 4¼s. Copies may be obtained at headquarters, No. 25 Milk street, or will be mailed on request.

Nation Has Subscribed Little More Than a Half of the 6 Billions Needed

Washington, Oct. 16.—With four more days remaining before the end of the campaign only a little more than $3,000,000,000 has been subscribed to the Fourth Liberty Loan, the Treasury Department announced today.

This represents only half of the quota, and if the loan is to go over the top some $750,000,000 must be subscribed on each remaining day of the campaign. While officials were far from optimistic over the situation they believed that the last minute efforts of patriots might bring the loan well up toward the $6,000,000,000 goal.

The first really encouraging reports began to arrive today. These reports carried ample evidence that the country realizes the serious business it has ahead the remainder of this week to make the loan a success.

CLOSE RACE IN WEST.

The close race between the Minneapolis and the St. Louis Federal Reserve Districts to be the first over the line is one of the features of the day's reports. Other encouraging reports come from the Boston, Philadelphia and New York districts, where the influenza epidemic seems to be subsiding and open air meetings are more general.

Spectacular methods are being used in the cleveland Federal Reserve District to put the loan over. In the towns of 25 counties of Ohio and Pennsylvania last night modern Paul Revere's rides were staged. Army motor trucks, manned by crews of eight, made "Night raids" on towns and villages. The trucks were equipped with aerial bombs, electric gongs and sirens and red fire apparatus. Sailors were supplied with shot guns and blank cartridges. Towns were visited chiefly after midnight and everybody was called out of bed. Pajama mass meetings were held everywhere and $256,000 was netted in a single night.

RAIDING PARTY JAILED.

In Brookline, Pa., the raiding party was mistaken for bank robbers and incarcerated in the village calaboose for three hours. At Georgetown, O., and at Jefferson, Pa., the raiding parties were fired upon.

The modernized Paul Revere stunt will be carried to many other communities in the Cleveland district tonight.

Cleveland today reported total of over $271,000,000 with new bursts of speed in all parts of the district. The week the same program will be given, starting at 7 o'clock and being repeated at 8:45. The programs are different in that the motion pictures are not repeated, but a different set shown at each period. Last night the stars featured on the screen were Emily Stevens, Dorothy Dalton, Charles Ray, Wallace Reid, Karle Williams, Hayakawa, the Drews, Mae Murray.

Tonight's motion pictures in the two programs will be as follows:

"A Bullet for Berlin," featuring William Hart.

"The Biggest and the Littlest Lady in the World," Marguerite Clark.

"Liberty Bond Jimmy," Harold Lockwood.

"A Liberty Bond Appeal," Alice Brady.

"Sic 'Em, Sam," Douglas Fairbanks.

"The Bonds That Tie," Geraldine Farrar.

"Liberty Loan Appeal," William Gish.

The community singing at these rallies for liberty is a noted feature, under the direction of Song Leaders Leon E. Baldwin and Thomas E. Chilford of the War Service Unit. "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," the official marching song of the New England army division in France; the familiar "Keep the Home Fires Burning."

One of the "silent talks" dealt with "German Propaganda in America," and another told tersely "What the War Must Go On."

Boston Common at Liberty Hall is the only place in Boston where such a program can be seen under existing epidemic conditions.

WHO WILL GET THE FISH?

The Liberty Loan Committee of New England today received an offer from the East Coast Fisheries Company of a barrel of fresh ground fish, weighing approximately 200 pounds, to be given as a prize to the booth on the Common selling the largest amount of bonds in the "All Nations Bond Rally" to be held next Saturday afternoon, the prize to be given by them to whatever charitable institution they may name.

The company's steam trawler Fishhawk arrived in Boston today with approximately 60,000 pounds of this fish, from which the prize barrel has been taken. The fish will be seen on the Common during the rally, with other prizes, and is all iced up and ready for shipment to its ultimate destination.

The Sea Coast Fisheries Co.'s fleet flies the 100 per cent. subscription honor pennant, and many members of the Fishhawk crew are members of the crew of the torpedoed steam trawler Kingfisher sunk some four weeks ago off the coast of Nova Scotia, while some of them have the double distinction of having been prior to the sinking of the crew of the steam trawler Triumph, captured by a German U-boat and converted into a raider.

INCREASE SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Among large subscriptions are: Suffolk Savings Bank, $200,000 addition, making in all $1,000,000.

F. H. Roberts & Co. called interests increased their total to $297,000. This makes the total of manufacturing customers, $1,275,000, against a total of $930,000 on the third loan.

ARMY AND NAVY BUSY.

The First Naval District, Little Boston, went "over the top" today with $160,350, which is $6,350 above its quota.

The Boston Navy Yard has reached $77,650, which is $40,000 over its quota.

The Northeastern Department, No. 99 Chanmy street, for the past week, ending October 14, subscriptions amounting to $1,375,800. A week ago it reported $847,850. In addition to this the coast artillery records subscriptions to the amount of $95,300.

Liberty Loan Lessons

NO. 2.

By NICK FLATLEY.

John Jones was what you might call the poor but honest working man. He never loafed a day in his life, he never had time.

Mrs. Jones and the young Joneses took up all the money he could gather by the sweat of his brow every day, every week, every year.

Jones never got ahead a bit, though he tried hard enough. But he found getting behind easier than not being able to get his new suit of clothes.

But Jones, of course, was a patriot. When the war broke out, he worried more than ever he did about where the next week's rent was coming from. And he did plenty of worrying about that all the time.

Then one day Mrs. Jones talked it over, a long, long time, and finally decided to let the wolf get a little bit closer to the Jones' door than he was already, which was plenty close enough.

So the Jones bought a Liberty Bond, a dollar down and a dollar a week. Jones and Mrs. Jones were prouder of the button he got than they were when the first little Jones said "Ma-ma."

The dollar a week meant a lot of little comforts—big ones in the Jones' view of life—wiped right out. But the year ended and they had a Liberty Bond, and had a better time spending the two coupons than they ever had before.

Then for the first time in his life, Jones did what most other people were doing at the same time—he got sick. He felt badly enough often before, but he had too much to do ever to notice it. But this time it was something different. He had to stay in bed, and had to have a doctor.

In the mysterious ways that Joneses have, they got along without the doc before, but it was something different this time. Paying a doctor was like buying a grand piano for them. Then Mrs. Jones thought of the Liberty Bond.

She went to a bank to sell it, but she didn't. The man in the bank wouldn't buy it. But he loaned her its full value. And she can pay it back, same old dollar a week way, and still keep the precious bond.

She's doing it, Jones has had the doctor, is getting better, and will have a better job, right in the bank as soon as he's out.

NEW YORK GAIN 103 MILLION OVER NIGHT

New York, Oct. 16.—A gain of $103,- 601,050 over night was announced today by the Liberty Loan committee for the New York district. New York's total subscription announced today was $817,589,650.

The total subscriptions to date is less than 50 per cent. of the quota of $1,800,000,000 for the Second Federal Reserve District. During the remaining four days of the drive, including today, New York and its environs must raise a total of $982,- 410,350. If its quota is to be filled. This means a total of $246,602,587.50 per day for the district.

A movement was set on foot by big interests to take additional blocks of the loan.

Today was Russian day in the campaign and every day from now until the end of the drive will be featured in some manner.

The announcement that residents of the lower East Side, perhaps the poorest district in New York, had subscribed for more than $25,000,000 of the bonds was expected to stimulate subscriptions in other districts.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.—Advertisement.

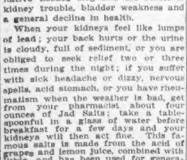
BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at first sign of Bladder irritation or Backache.



The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

"LITTLE NAPOLEON OF TURKEY" FIRM FRIEND OF PAN-GERMANS

ENVER PASHA SOUGHT TO AID MITTEL EUROPA PLAN OF KAISER

Store; from the beginning, indeed, his career had been one lucky crisis after another. His nature had a remorselessness, a lack of pity, a cold blooded determination, of which his clean-cut handsome face, his small but sturdy figure and his pleasing manners gave no indication.

Nor would the casual spectator have suspected the passionate personal ambition that drove him on. His friends commonly referred to him as "Napoleonitk"—the little Napoleon, and this nickname really represented Enver's abiding conviction.

As soon as Enver became Minister of War, Wangenheim flattered and cajoled the young man, played upon his ambitions, and gradually promised him Germany's complete support in achieving them. In his private conversation Enver made no secret of his admiration for Germany.

Thus Enver's elevation to the Ministry of War was virtually a German victory. He immediately instituted a drastic reorganization. Enver told me himself that he had accepted the post only on condition that he should have a free hand, and this free hand he now proceeded to exercise.

"PRUSSIANIZES TURK ARMY.

Thus his first acts were the beginnings in the Prussification of the Turkish army, but Talaat was not an enthusiastic German. He, like his associate. He had no intention of playing Germany's game; he was working chiefly for the countries and for himself. But he could not succeed unless he had control of the army; therefore, he had made Enver, for years his arrimate associate in "U and P" politics, minister of war. Again he needed a strong army if he was to have any at all, and therefore he turned to the one source where he could find assistance, to Germany.

Wangenheim and Talaat, in the latter part of 1913, had arranged that the Kaiser should send a military mission to reorganize the Turkish forces. Talaat told me that in calling in this mission he was using Germany, though Germany thought that it was using him.

Desperate and wicked as Talaat subsequently showed himself to be, I still think that he at least was not then a willing tool of Germany. An episode that involved myself bears out this view. In describing the relations of the great powers to Turkey I have said nothing about the United States. In fact we had no important business relations at that time.

The Turks regarded us as a country of idealists and altruists, and the fact that we spent millions building wonderful educational institutions in their country purely from philanthropic motives aroused their astonishment and possibly their admiration.

They liked Americans and regarded us as about the only disinterested friend whom they had among nations. But our interests in Turkey were small; the Standard Oil Company did a growing business, the Singer Company sold sewing machines to the Armenians and Greeks; we bought a good deal of their tobacco, fig and nuts, and gathered their licorice root.

In addition to these activities, missionaries and educational experts formed about our only contacts with the Turkish Empire. The Turks knew that we had no desire to dismember their country or to mingle in Balkan politics. The very fact that my country was so disinterested was perhaps the reason why Talaat discussed Turkish affairs so freely with me.

SUGGESTS AID FROM U. S.

In the course of these conversations I frequently expressed my desire to serve them, and Talaat and some of the other members of the Cabinet got into the habit of consulting me on business matters.

Soon after my arrival, I made a speech at the American Chamber of Commerce in Constantinople. Talaat, Djemal, and other important leaders were present. I talked about the United States after the Civil War and made the point that our devastated Southern States presented a spectacle not unlike that of Turkey at the present moment.

I then related how we had gone to work, developed our resources, and built up the present thriving nation. My remarks apparently made a deep impression, especially my statement that after the Civil War the United States had become a large borrower in foreign money markets and had invited immigration from all parts of the world.

This speech apparently gave Talaat a new idea. It was not impossible that the United States might furnish him the material support which he had been seeking in Europe. Already I had suggested that an American financial expert should be sent to study Turkish finance and in this connection I had mentioned Mr. Henry Bruere, of New York—a suggestion which the Turks had received favorably.

At that time Turkey's greatest need was money. France had financed Turkey for many years, and French bankers, in the Spring of 1914, were negotiating for another large loan. Though Germany had made some loans, the conditions of the Berlin money market at that time did not encourage the Turks to expect much assistance from that source.

In late December, 1913, Rustany Effendi, a Christian Arab, and Minister of Commerce and Agriculture, who spoke English fluently—he had been Turkish commissioner to the Chicago World's Fair in 1893—called and approached me on the question of an American loan. Rustany asked if there were not American financiers who would take entire charge of the reorganization of Turkish finance.

"SCRAPING BOX FOR MONEY."

His plea was really a cry of despair and it touched me deeply. As I wrote in my diary at the time, "They seem to be scraping the box for money." But I had been in Turkey only six weeks, and obviously I had no information on which I could recommend such a large contract to American bankers. I informed Rustany that my advice would not carry much weight in the United States unless it were based on a complete knowledge of economic conditions in Turkey.

Talaat came to me a few days later, suggesting that I make a prolonged tour over the empire and study the situation at first hand. He asked if I could not arrange meanwhile a small temporary loan to tide them over the interim. He said there was no money in the Turkish treasury; if I could get them only $5,000,000, that would satisfy them. I told Talaat that I would try to raise this amount for them, and that I would adopt his suggestion and post his empire with the possible idea of interesting American investors.

After obtaining the consent of the State Department, I wrote to my nephew and business associate, Mr. Robert J. Slimm, asking him to solicit certain New York institutions and bankers on making a small short-time collateral loan to Turkey. Mr. Simon's investigation soon disclosed that a Turkish loan did not seem to be regarded as an attractive business undertaking in New York. Mr. Simon wrote, however, that Mr. C. K. G. Billings had shown much interest in the idea, and that, if I desired, Mr. Billings would come out in his yacht and discuss the matter with the Turkish Cabinet and with me. In a few days Mr. Billings had started for Constantinople.

The news of Mr. Billings' approach spread with great rapidity all over the Turkish capital; the fact that he was coming in his own private yacht seemed to magnify the importance and glamour of the event. That a great American millionaire was coming to the rescue of the depleted Turkish Treasury and that this support was merely the preliminary step to the reorganization of Turkish finances by American capitalists produced a tremendous flutter in the foreign embassies.

EAGER TO GREET BILLINGS.

Wangenheim displayed an almost hysterical interest; the idea of America coming to the financial assistance of Turkey did not fit in with his plans at all, for in his eyes Turkey's poverty was chiefly valuable as a means of forcing the empire into Germany's hands. One day I showed Wangenheim a book containing etchings of Mr. Billings' homes, pictures and, horses. he showed a great interest not only in the horses—Wangenheim was something of a horseman himself—but in this tangible evidence of great wealth. For the next few days several ambassadors and ministers filed into my office, each solemnly asking for a glimpse at this book.

As the time approached for Mr. Billings' arrival, Talaat began making elaborate plans for his entertainment; he consulted me as to whom we should invite to the proposed dinners, lunches and receptions. As usual, Wangenheim got in ahead of the rest. He could not come to the dinner which we had planned and asked me to have him for lunch, and in this way he met Mr. Billings several hours before the other diplomats. Mr. Billings frankly told him that he was interested in Turkey and that he was not unlikely that he would make the loan.

In the evening we gave the Billings party a dinner, all the important members of the Turkish Cabinet being present. Before this dinner, Talaat, Mr. Billings, and myself had a long talk about the loan. Talaat informed us that the French bankers had accepted their terms that very day, and that they would, therefore, need no American money at that time. He was extremely gracious and grateful to Mr. Billings and profuse in expressing his thanks. Indeed, he might well have, for Mr. Billings' arrival enabled Talaat at last to close negotiations with the French bankers.

LEAVES BRIDE FOR DINNER.

His attempt to express his appreciation had one curious manifestation. Enver, the second man in the Cabinet, was celebrating his wedding when Mr. Billings arrived. The progress which Enver was making in the Turkish world is evidenced from the fact that, although Enver, as I have said, came of the humblest stock, his bride was a daughter of the Turkish Imperial House. Turkish weddings are prolonged affairs, lasting two or three days. The day following the Embassy dinner, Talaat gave the Billings party a luncheon at the Cercle d'Orient, and he insisted that Enver should leave his wedding ceremony long enough to attend this function. Enver, therefore, came to the luncheon, sat through all the speeches, and then returned to his bridal party.

I am convinced that Talaat did not regard this Billings episode as closed. As I look back upon this transaction, I see clearly that he was seeking to extricate his country. This yachting visit, though it did not lack certain episodic elements at the time I am sure ultimately saved many lives from starvation and massacre.

But even in March, 1914, the German had pretty well tightened their hold on Turkey. Liman von Sanders, who had arrived in December, had become the predominant influence in the Turkish army. At first Von Sanders' appointment aroused no particular hostility, for German missions had been called in before to instruct the Turkish army, notably that of Von der Goltz, and an English naval mission, headed by Admiral Limpus, was even then in Turkey attempting the difficult task of reorganizing the Turkish navy.

VON SANDERS IN CONTROL.

We soon discovered, however, that the Von Sanders military mission was something quite different from those which I have named. Even before Von Sanders' arrival it had been announced that he was to take command of the first Turkish army corps and that General Bronsart von Schellendorf was to become chief of staff. The appointments signified nothing less than that the Kaiser had almost completed his plans to annex the Turkish army to his own.

To allow the power which Von Sanders' appointment had given him to pass unchecked was to let the first army corps practically control constantinople. These changes clearly showed to what an extent Enver Pasha had become a cog in the Prussian system.

In January, 1914, seven months before the great War began, Germany held this position in the Turkish army: A colonel general as chief of staff; another was inspector of artillery; a German staff officer had commands of the first inspectorate, and the Turkish politicians were all speaking about the greatness of Germany. Enver Pasha, was minister of war.

After securing this diplomatic triumph Wangenheim was granted a vacation—he had certainly earned it—and since the Mission ambassador went off on a vacation at the same time Baroness Wangenheim remained in Pera. I was informed at this time of all these subtleties of diplomacy, although what these details signified Wangenheim's leave of absence, she said, meant that the German foreign office regarded the Von Sanders episode as closed—and closed with a German victory. (Here' forsooth, she exclaimed, means that Russia declined to accept this point of view and that so far as Russia was concerned, the Von Sanders affair is not ended.

AN "AFFRONT" TO KAISER.

An incident which took place in my own house opened at our eyes to how seriously Von Sanders regarded this military mission. On February 15th, I gave my wife's diplomatic dinner, General Bronsarts and his two daughters attended the general sitting next to my daughter Ruth. My daughter, however, did not have a very enjoyable time. The German Field Marshal sitting in his gorgeous uniform, his breast all sparkling with medals, hardly said a word throughout the whole meal. He ate his food silently and sullenly, all my daughter's attempts to enter into conversation evoking only an occasional surly monosyllable. The behaviour of this great military leader was that of a spoiled child.

At the end of the dinner Von Mollos, the German charge d'affaires, came up to me in a high state of excitement. It was some time before I could sufficiently control his agitation to deliver his message.

"You have made a terrible mistake, Mr. Ambassador," he said. "What is that?" I asked, naturally taken aback.

"You have greatly offended Field Marshal von Sanders. You have placed him at the dinner lower in rank than the foreign ministers. His proper place as the personal representative of the German Kaiser is to rank in point of equal rank with the Ambassadors. He should have been placed ahead of the Cabinet Ministers and the foreign ministers.

It was Enver Pasha who completed the "Prussianization" of the Turkish army shortly after his elevation to office early in 1914. The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and you have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex, then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if preferred, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Simple Home Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair.

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ½ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. This is not a dye, it does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

THIS MAY HELP YOU

Home-Mixed Cough Syrup, Very Cheap, Very Effective.

Mrs. Joseph Meilleur, 445 Jefferson street, Tiffin, O., writes:

"I have used the Mentho-Laxene for colds. Must say I find it better than any cough syrup I have ever used yet. I coughed night and day for a week. After I got the Mentho-Laxene to use the coughing stopped in three days, etc."

Just buy a 2½-ounce bottle of Mentho-Laxene (it is richly concentrated) and mix it with simple syrup, as per directions with bottle, and then you will have a whole pint of the finest, quickest cold, cough and catarrh medicine you ever used, and no opiates or narcotics, either. Hundreds of thousands of people now make their own medicine to avoid expense and uncertainty.—Advertisement.

WIFE NO. 1 AT AYER ACCUSES SOLDIER

But Number 2 Is True to Sergeant Berg: Court Hearing Tomorrow

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Oct. 16—Two women will appear in Ayer Police Court tomorrow and testify against the soldier to whom they plighted their troth at the altar and promised to love, honor and obey. The women are Veronica M. Tucker Berg, twenty-two, of Crompton, R. I., and Helen B. Laeddrecke Berg, twenty-three, of Medford, Wis. The soldier is Sergeant Harry Berg of G Company, 73d Infantry. He pleaded guilty to a charge of polygamy in Ayer Police Court Tuesday and the case was continued to permit the military authorities to look into the matter.

Wife No. 1 met No. 2 at the State police quarters. Wife No. 1 from Rhode Island, in mourning, was told of Berg's arrest while she was viewing her dead mother's face for the last time, and hurried here with her brother. When she entered the police station wife No. 2 was seated in the office. She has been rooming on Pleasant street.

HIS WIFE FOR LIFE.

"I am the real Mrs. Berg and I've got my picture and my marriage certificate to show that I am," said wife No. 1, not knowing that wife No. 2 was in front of her.

Wife No. 2 turned a bit pale, but kept silent. Wife No. 1 was interrupted by the police matron, Mrs. Mary Singhrue, and escorted to another room, much to the relief of wife No. 2.

"I'm going to punish my husband," said wife No. 1. "I lived with him two months after our marriage in Arctic Centre, R. I., in June, 1916. A man who can't be true to a woman ought to have his head knocked off. My mother was buried today. I was bending over looking at her sweet face at our home in Crompton when told that my husband had another wife in Ayer. I came here after the funeral. I'm going to be his wife as long as I live."

STILL TRUE TO HARRY.

Here is the story of wife No. 2:

"I met Harry in Minneapolis a year ago. He was a perfect gentleman. He was good and kind to me. He was always attentive to me. He never went around with anybody else. We were married in Minneapolis, June 22, this year. He was in the 36th Infantry at Fort Snelling at the time. He came here two months ago and three weeks later I followed when he forwarded my fare. I never knew he was married.

"I love Harry, and I'll always love him. I hope he won't be punished. If not, I want to share that punishment."

Since pleading guilty to the bigamy charge, Berg has been confined in the guard house. He will be dealt with by the military authorities when his case is disposed of in court tomorrow.

FOE ROUTED IN NOISY BATTLE AT AYER

Thousand Real Bombs and Grenades Shake Country for Miles Around

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Oct. 16.—Genuine bombs and grenades were exploded, an imaginary enemy was routed and victory acclaimed here today when a mimic battle was fought on the bombing grenade field in the presence of the general staff school and the general and field officers of the Pilgrim division.

The report of the bursting shells could be heard for miles around. More than 1,000 bombs and grenades were used in the engagement.

The assault in force was made by bombers and grenadiers, who advanced across the field, leaping from one shell hole to another. Hand bombs and grenades were thrown promiscuously. The finale consisted of a barrage of rifle grenades.

The staff school and "war correspondents," who stood grouped 300 feet in the rear of the combatants, had to dodge pieces of the bombs which fell in all directions. Major Berrell, French general staff officer, demonstrated to the staff school what transpired.

COMMENDED BY LEADER.

At the conclusion of the battle the participants were addressed by Major-General Harry P. McCain, who complimented them on the successful way in which they carried out instructions.

Major Barratt O'Hara, in charge of the camp Liberty Loan activities, reported today that bonds of $195,100 worth had been sold so far, and that he expected to reach the million dollar mark in six more days. Of the amount subscribed, 34 per cent. came from the officers.

There were no deaths reported today.

This telegram from the War Department was read at retreat today:

"There never was a more critical time in the history of the war than this present week overseas. American valor and efficiency are carrying the banner of triumph and democracy with resistless force toward German soil. The order of the fighting line must not be coiled, and the wonderful initiative and spirit of our soldiers must not be dulled by any attitude to carry the Fourth Liberty Loan victoriously over the top.

ALL MUST DO DUTY.

"The people at home must show that they are as resolute as the soldiers at the front are brave. No influence is so potent in its stimulating effect on the people of our country as the example of the men with the colors.

"Let every American soldier and every American officer do his duty not only by subscribing himself but urging those at home to subscribe."

Rev. Thomas F. Moulton, camp chaplain, who has been ill, is recovering.

The demonstration platoon of the depot brigade, commanded by Lieutenant Stanley C. Pelchar, gave a realistic exhibition of the method by which a storm point is taken by American soldiers. It was witnessed by the doughboys of the 330th Infantry. It included all infantry methods of attack, hand bombers, rifle grenadiers, liaison agents, scouts, machine riflemen and carriers.

Patriotic exercises in which the recently formed foreign legion will take part are scheduled to be held this evening in the main building of the Knights of Columbus.

During the evening all soldiers of Polish extraction who declared their intention to become citizens of this country and fight for the Stars and Stripes will each receive certificates of naturalization.

Another event of equal importance to the soldiers of this cantonment is the big demonstration to be held in the same building October 26, when all soldiers of Italian extraction will gather to listen to an address by Major Bellot. A fine program is being arranged by the committees.

Through the activity of Captain John Champlin each officer at the base hospital subscribed $500 or more to the Fourth Liberty Loan.

RADIO SCHOOL MAY AGAIN ENLARGE

Naval Institution Expected to Take Over Additional Harvard Buildings

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Oct. 16.—The Radio School is expected to take over additional Harvard buildings for use in connection with the naval institution, it was learned today. The enlargement is due, it was stated, to the increased demand on the part of the Navy Department for facilities with which to accommodate the large number of Radio students stationed here.

The S. A. T. C. army unit, has reduced the number of Harvard buildings available, and if the naval examination and the army authorities make further demands upon the college buildings, Harvard will be really be a complete wartime institution.

The new postoffice and bank at the Radio are finding much favor among the Radio students. Bank deposits are increasing daily, and the students find the new mail deliveries much to their convenience.

PIGEONS CARRY MESSAGES TO DEVENS

Others From Boston Army Headquarters Fly to Fort Banks With Best Wishes

The first messages by carrier pigeons from the army headquarters, No. 99 Chauncy street, were sent today from the pigeon loft of the army at the top of the building to Camp Devens and Fort Banks.

The first bird known as "The Champion of Camp Devens," was lifted into the air by Major Foster Veitenheimer, Signal Corps officer of the Northeastern department in the presence of Major-General William Crozier, commanding the department, who sent the following message to Major-General Henry P. McCain, Camp Devens: "To General McCain:

"The greatest joy on conquering the influenza attack and I am sure your division will treat those other enemies in the same way.

(Signed) "WILLIAM CROZIER,
"Commanding the Northeastern Department."

BEARING "MERCURY."

After watching the bird circle around in the air without taking a direct course for Camp Devens, General Crozier named the bird "Mercury" in honor of the occasion and because it acted like a true messenger.

The message was carried around the leg of the bird in a small metallic case.

The Boston newspaper men covering the army headquarters sent the second message to Camp Devens by a sprightly bird named "The Fourth Estate."

The bird was handled by Major Veitenheimer, but was in a great hurry to get away.

It flew into the air, and without waiting to get directions made a straight dart for Camp Devens. The first bird left at 11:10 a. m.; the second at 11:15 a. m.

The message of the newspaper bird was:

"To Major-General McCain, Camp Devens:

"The Boston newspaper men at army headquarters send you most cordial greetings.

(Signed) "A. E. GEORGE,
"Boston American."

LIKE KREASED LIGHTNING.

The third bird, named "Kreased Lightning," was sent to Fort Banks.

Brigadier-General John W. Ruckman, commanding officer of the Coast Artillery, sent by this bird the following message to the commanding officer at Fort Banks:

"I am taking the advantage of this opportunity to forward my best wishes for your continued welfare.

(Signed) "JOHN W. RUCKMAN,
"Commanding the Coast Artillery."

Three other birds were sent to Camp Devens and one other to Fort Banks.

Each one bore messages sent by the generals and newspapermen were duplicated.

Private Godfrey Timmerman of the 301st Infantry, at Camp Devens, who has been confined to the base hospital with influenza for the last three weeks, was released from the hospital today and returned to his company.

Major-General Albert Blandin, from Camp Devens, Ayer, is now in the region where strenuous fighting is taking place, and has been awarded the Croix de Guerre and other honors by the French government.

Captain Henry H. Chandler, aide to Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, Richard J. Hill, aide to Brigadier-General Harrison, and Major John F. Mahoney and Major Ray M. Smith.

This Day in History

THIS is the anniversary of the raid on Harpers Ferry by John Brown in 1859. Brown had formed plans to liberate the slaves. After a desperate resistance he was captured, tried and executed. The event had much to do in precipitating the great Civil War.

CHAPTER XXVIII.—Continued

"LISTEN," he said, "I can prove to you, if you will, that it is not bluff. I can prove to you I really know something of what I am talking about."

"There is nothing I should like better," she declared.

"To begin with, then," Lutchester said, "the pocketbook which Nikasti is supposed to have stolen from your room, the pocketbook of young Sandy Graham, which Mr. Fischer has sent to Germany, does not contain the formula of the new explosive, or any other formula that amounts to anything."

"Just how do you know that?" she demanded. "Is this a trick. You won't get it! No one but Mr. Haskall will get that formula from me!"

Lutchester smiles.

"It will only puzzle him when he gets it! To tell you the truth the formula is rubbish."

"I don't believe you," she said firmly. "If you think you are going to interfere with my handing it over to him, you are mistaken."

"I have no wish to do anything of the sort," Lutchester assured her. "Make a bargain with me, Mr. Haskall will be here soon. Unfasten the little package you are carrying somewhere about your person, hand him the envelope and watch his face. If he tells you that what you have offered him is a coherent and possible formula for an explosive, then you can look upon me for ever afterwards as the poor, foolish person you sometimes seem to consider me. If, on the other hand, he tells you that it is rubbish, I shall expect you at the Ritz-Carlton at half-past eight."

There was a ring at the bell. She rose to her feet.

"I accept," she declared. "That is Mr. Haskall. And, by the bye, Mr. Lutchester, don't order too elaborate a dinner, for I am very much afraid you will have to eat it all yourself. Now, au revoir," she added, as the door was opened in obedience to her summons and a servant stood prepared to show him out. "If we don't turn up tonight, you will know the reason."

"I am very hopeful," Lutchester replied, as he turned away.

CHAPTER XXIX.

AT five-and-twenty minutes past 8 that evening, Lutchester, who was waiting in the entrance hall of the Ritz-Carlton, became just a little restless. At half-past, his absorption in the evening paper, over the top of which he looked at every newcomer, was almost farcical. At five-and-twenty to nine Pamela arrived.

"To talk to you is exactly what I wish to do," she said, as they took their places. "We commence, if you please, with a question. Mr. Fischer thought that he had the formula and he hasn't. I could have sworn that it was in my possession—and it isn't. Where is it?"

"I took it to the Patent Office before I left England," he told her simply. "They will have the first few tons of the stuff ready next month."

"You," she cried. "But where did you get it?"

"I happened to be first, that's all," he explained. "You see, I had the advantage of a little inside information. I could have exposed the whole affair if I had thought it wise. I preferred, however, to let matters take their course. Young Graham deserved all he got there, and I made sure of being the first to go through his papers. I'm afraid I must confess that I left a bogus formula for you."

"To begin at the beginning, then —about that destroyer!"

"My mission over here was really important," he admitted. "I couldn't catch the Lapland, so the Admiralty sent me over."

"And you golf with Senator Hambidin? It wasn't altogether by accident you met him down at Baltusrol, was it?"

Berlin Proposals

"It was not," he confessed. "I had reason to suspect that certain proposals from Berlin were to be put forward to the President either through his or Senator Hastings' mediation. There were certain facts in connection with them, which I desired to be the first to lay before the authorities."

She looked around the room and recognized some of her friends. For some reason or other she felt remarkable light-hearted.

"For a vanquished woman," she observed, turning back to Lutchester, "I feel extraordinarily gay tonight. Tell me some more."

"Fischer is too near the end of his rope for me to feel spiteful," he said, "though I am quite prepared to grant that he may be capable of considerable mischief yet. A man who has the sublime effrontery to attempt to come to an agreement with two countries, each behind the other's back, is a little more than Machiavellian, isn't he?"

"Is that true of Mr. Fischer?"

"Absolutely," Lutchester assured her. "He is over here for the purpose of somehow or other making it known informally in Washington that Germany would be willing to pledge herself to an alliance with America against Japan, after the war, if America will alter her views as to the export of munitions to the allies."

"Well, that's a reasonable proposition, isn't it, from the point of view?" Pamela remarked. "It may not be a very agreeable one from yours, but it is certainly one which he has a right to make."

"Entirely," Lutchester agreed, "but where he goes wrong is that his primary object in coming here was to meet the chief of the Japanese Secret Service, to whom he has made a proposition of precisely similar character."

Pamela sat down her glass.

"You are not in earnest!"

"Absolutely."

"Nikasti!"

"Precisely! He came all the way from Japan to confer with Fischer. Probably, if we knew the whole truth, those rooms at the Plaza Hotel, and the social partnership of your brother and Fischer, were arranged for no other reason than to provide a safe personality for Nikasti in this country, and a safe place for him to talk things over with Fischer."

"Mr. Fischer was paying nearly the whole of the expenses of the Plaza suite," Pamela observed thoughtfully.

"Naturally," Lutchester replied. "Your brother's name was a good safe name to get behind. I conclude with our friend Nikasti. He is supposed to leave New York next Saturday, and to carry to the Emperor of Japan an autograph letter from a nameless person, promising him, if Japan will cease the export of munitions to Russia, the aid of Germany in her impending campaign against America."

"An autograph letter, did you say?" Pamela almost gasped.

"An autograph letter," Lutchester repeated firmly. "Now don't you agree with me that Fischer's game is just a little too daring?"

"It is preposterous," she cried.

"Your Sweetheart for the Liberty Loan"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1918, by International Feature Service, Inc.

"ARE you an 'I should worry' girl who is out of things—far at the tail-end of the march of this country with her shoulders proudly aligned with the allies all—the heroic Canadians, the splendid Scots, the Britons who die for their country with the same smile with which they lose or win a game, the wonderful thinking French of undying patience and spirit who did not call for peace; the Anzacs glorious in deeds, the Italians fulfilling their great destiny—great in courage—"without reproach," the host of nations who are "out after" the criminal nation, the Indian, the colored, the Arab, the Pole, who all scorned Germany and judged her "barbarian"? Are you that girl—or are you the girl who knows exactly what we are fighting for, who has saved her money and bought a bond to help "our boys over there" know that all their country is behind them, who signs her letters to her soldier-lover, "YOUR Sweetheart FOR THE LIBERTY LOAN!"—NELL BRINKLEY.

A SERIAL OF EAST AND WEST

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water.

CHAPTER LII.

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

ELIZABETH WADE awoke from a heavy sleep. The sun was shining feebly through the drawn curtains. The light from the night lamp had burned itself out.

The girl sat up and tried to recollect how she happened to be here. Her neck was stiff and her back ached from having spent hours in a sitting posture.

As her eyes fell on Martha Chapin's bed she remembered what had happened. But where was Mrs. Chapin?

Rising stiffly from her chair, Elizabeth started across the room just as the door opened and Mrs. Chapin entered, fully dressed.

"Good morning, dearie," she said gently. "I awoke at 6 o'clock, and when I saw how you was sleeping I crept out of the room and got dressed. You must have been very tired, for you never moved."

"What time is it now?" the girl questioned.

"After 7. Now go and change your clothes to freshen yourself up a bit. Then come down and have some coffee. I just remembered you've not had a bite nor a sup since yesterday noon."

"Perhaps that's why I feel so queer and dizzy," the girl said as she went toward her own room. "Why"—stopping as she heard some one moving about in the kitchen below—"who is getting breakfast?"

"Mrs. Miller," Martha Chapin explained. "I went down just now and had a talk with her. It seems that Mr. Butler asked Mr. Miller to let his wife come over here and do for us until you and me are feeling real good again. So she's arranged to stay on for several days."

"That is very kind," Elizabeth muttered.

She had slept so heavily and was so faint from lack of food that her brain worked slowly. She recalled as in a dream the happenings of last night. And she shrank from dwelling on them.

Seeks Butler in Vain

Yet as she bathed and dressed the haze lifted from her mind and one by one each incident of the afternoon and evening stood out clearly.

Was John asleep? Had the Sheriff been here yet? What had the Coroner said? She must get down stairs as soon as she could and ask her lower these questions.

But when she entered the dining room no was not there. Mrs. Miller was, and Mrs. Chapin introduced her, seating herself at the table as she did so.

"Elizabeth, my dear, this is our neighbor, Mrs. Miller," she said.

"Pleased to meet you," Mrs. Miller smiled. "I remember seeing you when I first came to this place to live, just after my marriage. But I guess you don't recollect me. You was only a small child then."

"No," Elizabeth responded politely. "I am afraid I don't recollect it. Mrs. Chapin has told me of your kindness in coming to us just now. We both appreciate it."

"Well, one must stand by neighbors in trouble," Mrs. Miller remarked. "That's what I told my Sam last night when he came over for me. And I promised Mr. Butler I'd stay. He was kinder worried about you and Mrs. Chapin."

Elizabeth noticed that the widow looked pale and nervous, and she changed the current of the conversation.

"Dear," she urged, 'do take some coffee. It is good and hot."

When a Girl Marries

A NEW SERIAL OF YOUNG MARRIED LIFE

By ANN LISLE

(Copyright, 1918, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

"WHY, of course, Father Andrew wouldn't mind," I said thoughtfully. "He'd expect you to stay right here with us, and he couldn't help being proud of your earning so much—$30, Neal—for a baby like you."

Neal arose majestically and frowned.

"I'm twenty-two, Anne. They think boys of twenty-one are men—old enough to go over and rush the Germans. And I've been working in an accountant's office at home every Summer since I was fifteen. You know that. I've had a good job at home, too, since I got out of high school three years ago. Eighteen per wasn't so bad."

"Eighteen a week out home would go almost as far as thirty here," I said, wondering if Neal wouldn't be better off at home.

"Well, you know I paid in eight a week for board, Babbsie. What are you going to charge me? I should think about fifteen, the way prices are in New York. Say, this is a swell room, and a swell couch. I've struck it rich."

Suddenly I realized that Neal took it for granted he was going to stay with me. What would Jim say?

"Listen, dear, I want you to remain here just as long as you're comfortable—but I'm not going to take money from my own darling kid brother," I replied firmly.

"Well, I like that! Say, Babbsie, didn't I pay in eight per at home? Don't turn this little old fox loose in New York with too much cash—he might buy himself a gold brick. Say, sis, let's toss up a penny who washes the dishes. The winner dries them."

As we finished the work, Neal looked around with a complete air of possession—of belonging.

"They paid me a week in advance, sis," he suddenly said. "Here's my first fifteen. It's worth it, Babbsie. My, but you know how to flop eggs —and your coffee—yum—yum."

"I can't take it, Neal—money from my little brother!"

Neal forced the bills into my hand.

No Sponging

"Can the sentiment, sis. It's all right between us, but I'm not going to sponge on that husband of yours."

"I won't take your money," I said stubbornly. "What did father say about you plans to pay me?"

"Father said nothing." Neal looked down at his feet. "He didn't know I was coming. I got my job and lit out—suddenly."

"Neal," I cried in sudden fright, "why did you do that?"

"Now, Babbsie, I answered you long ago. Why? For thirty dollars! To get mixed up with the big city and kind of get lost in it. I want to live here, with your ex-Lieutenant and you and all your attractive friends. Don't ask so many questions, Babbsie—I tell you I've got my reasons all right! Are you going to be a good sport and let me stay?"

Neal's young face wore a look of deadly earnestness. I realised that it meant more to him than I knew to make a home with Jim and me, and I realized also, with cruel abruptness, that I must take his money.

"Neal, I won't ask you to tell me anything you don't want me to know. You shall stay as long as you like and I'll let you pay me ten dollars a week—but—but—I'm not going to tell my husband I'm taking pay from you. If you want to stay you'll have to accept my terms."

Neal began to bluster:

"You want me to let that husband of yours think I'm sponging on him, do you? That's not fair—I can't be put in such a position."

"Then you can't stay with me, Neal."

Neal's eyes met mine challengingly. Our glances clashed for a moment and then he looked away.

"All right," he said at last. I'll do what you say, Babbsie. Now, why don't you call up that little Mason girl and invite her over for lunch? Work begins tomorrow and a fellow might as well enjoy life while he can."

There was something in my young brother's voice that worried me.

The Burden of Proof

Unusual War Time Picture Drama Featuring Talented Marion Davies and Staged by Julius Steger

(Novelized from the motion picture, "The Burden of Proof," based as a drama by Victorien Sardou and produced by the Marion Davies Film Corporation. Staged by Julius Steger. Scenario by F. M. Wellet. Screen version copyrighted.)

By Jane McLean

IN the well-remembered library the husband came face to face with his bride of yesterday. Elaine started a little, then recovered her poise. Mrs. Durant, who had also risen, stood with head down and fingers nervously clasping the bag she carried over her arm.

"Bob," said his uncle, as though all was well, "you heard Mrs. Durant's admission. In view of what she has said, it is only fair to give her the envelope from Dr. Kemp."

Suiting the action to the word he passed over to the widow the square envelope. With a haste in striking contrast to her usual deliberate manner, Mrs. Durant tore open the covering and found within not the confession supposed to have been penned by Dr. Kemp, but a piece of blank paper.

Instantly the trick by which she had been lured into revealing her part in Kemp's plans was made plain to her. She crumpled the paper in her hand and sank fainting into a chair.

By the time Mrs. Durant had recovered consciousness the Secret Service man had entered the room to carry out Mr. Blair's orders. The gentleman waited until the self-confessed tool of Dr. Kemp was able to comprehend the few remaining words he had to say to her, and when he spoke he showed no feeling of triumph at the success of his ruse, but rather pity that a woman of Mrs. Durant's attainments should find herself in a position so dangerous.

"Madame," he said, while Elaine and her husband stood looking with different emotions at the unfortunate widow, "I want to say to you that your confession has saved you from a much more unpleasant ordeal than the one you have just endured. My duty now is to turn you over to the Government, whose agent heard what you had to say in my home."

"Arrested! Am I arrested?" she cried wildly.

"You are under arrest," answered Mr. Blair.

"Elaine!" begged Mrs. Durant, trying to throw herself at the young wife's feet, "save me! Save me from this indignity!"

"Mrs. Durant," said Elaine, "I would have done what I could for you if you had not conspired against my country. Now I can do nothing, and if I could I would not."

Mr. Blair took her arm. "Madame, I will make it as easy for you as possible. Mr. Maxwell will accompany you to the proper department, and any immediate publicity will depend entirely on yourself."

Thus escorted out of the house where she had been regarded as a dear friend, Mrs. Durant disappeared completely from the knowledge of Mrs. Brooks and her intimates.

Mr. Blair, leaving the presence of his nephew, bowed to Elaine and departed.

Bob Ames and his wife were alone. It seemed to each that years had elapsed since they had met, yet less than twenty-four hours had gone by since they had been pronounced man and wife.

War Diets Aid Health

MANY BENEFITED BY ECONOMY

By Brice Belden, M. D.

THE reduction in food consumption made necessary by the war has been an excellent thing for most people, here as well as in Europe. Before the war most of us ate too much and acquired a host of diseases as a consequence.

There is an old saying to the effect that many people dig their graves with their teeth. This can hardly be said at the present time, and we may expect to see fewer cases than formerly of diabetes, obesity, fatty degeneration of the heart and other organs, gout, Bright's disease and diseases of the blood vessels, including apoplexy, all of which are frequently associated with the evil effects of overeating.

Not only did we formerly eat a larger amount of food than we needed, but we also ate a great deal of unsuitable food. This, too, has been largely rectified, for people understand as never before the values of different kinds of food, because of war conditions the public has received a liberal education in dietetics.

We must apply our new knowledge in a new way so as to avoid the evils of food insufficiency. To eat too little would be as great a mistake as to eat too much.

OLD HOTEL CLERK FOOLED

A Western senator who loves a good joke a few days ago stated to some of his personal friends at the Capitol an amusing incident that happened recently in his own family.

"Shortly after we came to Washington my wife's hair began to turn gray," the senator said. "I never saw anyone so distressed as Helen was. She fretted every time she looked into a mirror, and the more she fretted the grayer she grew.

"She took it so to heart that I suggested that she dye her hair, but she wouldn't listen to that. I suggested a wig, but that wouldn't do either.

"When we went out West for the summer, some one told her about a preparation called Q-Ban Color Restorer. When she was convinced it wasn't a dye, she tried it, and sure enough the gray hairs began gradually to disappear. By the time we were ready to return to Washington, she actually looked 20 years younger.

"We went to the hotel where we frequently stop, and my wife happened to walk up to the desk with me. The clerk was an old friend of mine, and he nearly knocked my breath away when he said: 'Senator, would you like a connecting room for your daughter?'"—Advertisement.

WORK ON DRAFT LISTS SPEEDED BY CROWDER

Registrants Exceed Estimated Number—Re-Classification Is Ordered

Washington, Oct. 16.—Draft boards throughout the country have thrown into high gear in response to Provost Marshal General Crowder's appeal for speed in the classification of registrants of the ages of nineteen and twenty and thirty-two and thirty-six, inclusive, who registered September 12.

In the past twenty-four hours the number of local boards in the various States to complete classification and finish the physical examination of all Class 1 men has been doubled.

A re-classification has been ordered for development battalions. The new classification reads:

Class A, fit for general military service; Class B, deferred remediable, fit for general military service when cured; Class C-1, general limited service, not quite fit for general military service, but fit for military service in the service of supplies overseas or for general military service in the United States only; Class C-2, special limited service, fit only for restricted military service in the United States in special capacity approved by medical officers; Class D, unfit for any military service.

The re-classification places former Class B men in Class C-1, and former Class C men in Class C-2, and a new class, B, is established, identical with group B of the old classification.

Final figures on the man-power registration of September 12, announced by the Provost Marshal-General's office, showed a total of 12,966,594, or an excess of 187,734 over the preliminary estimate. The final State to report was Texas, with 321,174, against an estimate of [illegible].

Belated registrations after September 12, including mail registrations and those men out of the country on September 12, are expected to lift the total above 13,000,000. Then the registration of Alaska, Porto Rico and Hawaii still are to be received.

OLD HOME WEEK FOR U. S. BOYS OVER THERE

Rodeheaver Has Big Idea—Margaret Mayo Entertains Soldiers

By DAMON RUNYON.

With the Americans on the Argonne Front, Oct. 16.—It has been "old home week" these past seven days on the road through the Argonne forest behind the advancing American lines.

Sergeant Alexander Woollcott, former New York dramatic critic, hurrying forward on a mission for "Stars and Stripes," the soldiers' newspaper, says every new American attack reminds one of a big "first night," because you meet everyone you know.

Homer Rodeheaver, Billy Sunday's trombonist, was one of many that passed along the muddy roads leading into the dark woods, where New York's Seventy-seventh Division chopped its name into history. Rodeheaver wears the Y. M. C. A. uniform. He was saying he would like to see the commanding general as he had an idea which he thought might help the commander in his work. The nature of "Rody's" idea is unknown.

Bill Wellman, former auto racing promoter, was discovered swinging a pick with Colonel Reggie Foster's pioneers, who were repairing the shell-torn highway within sound of the cannon. Bill had just received a word appointment to an officers' school. Colonel Foster hated to lose him, as he says Bill swings a mean pick.

Elizabeth Brice, actress, and Margaret Mayo, playwright, with Tommy Gray, also playwright, and Bill Morrissey, vaudevillian, went splashing past Wellman in an auto. They went on up to an artillery position and put on a show with the rear of a big truck for a stage.

ARMY IN NEED OF YOUR FRUIT PITS—SAVE 'EM!

The Boston AMERICAN'S Peach Stone Brigade, composed of over 3,000 boys and girls, is enthusiastically collecting peach stones for the government, as well as plum and prune stones and nut shells, but more and more of these valuable articles are necessary if the American army in France is to be supplied with gas masks.

The stones are used to make the special sort of charcoal necessary in gas masks. The Gas Defence Division of the Chemical Warfare Service of the Army needs all it can get of these pits and stones.

Any Red Cross branch will receive them and there are, throughout the city, barrels placed there for this collection.

BABY RETURNED TO MOTHER AT SHERBORN

Springfield, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Maria Cammarota, now in the woman's reformatory at Sherborn, has been given her baby girl to keep until the child is eighteen months old. The baby was born on July 29 in the county jail. The law provides that a baby can remain with its mother under such circumstances until such an age.

STOPS BACKACHE IN FEW MINUTES

Rub lumbago, pain, soreness, stiffness right out with "St. Jacobs Liniment"

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or neuritis has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Liniment" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right into the pain or ache, and by the time you count fifty the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating liniment takes the ache and pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica and lame back misery so promptly and surely. It never disappoints!—Advertisement.

CALL OUT SQUAD AT HARVARD

Pooch Donovan Enrolling Men Today and Starts Work Friday—All Up for Yale Game

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Harvard, continuing to pay strict attention to all military demands, has flashed forth the good news it is going to go in for football on quite a lavish scale this Fall.

From Cambridge comes official word that Trainer Pooch Donovan has been instructed to construct a varsity eleven from the 3,000 members of the S. A. T. C.; that he will start on his labors Friday, and that when Harvard's schedule is announced football rooters will be beside themselves with joy.

The announcement that Donovan is preparing to turn out a typical Harvard machine verifies the report out of New York Tuesday that the solons of the football world were preparing to revive a lot of the old gridiron classics, and make November equally as gay a football month as ever before, with all receipts going to the war charities fund.

TO REVIVE OLD CLASSICS.

In bygone days the season's big game was the Harvard-Yale clash. This combat more than any other is desired by Messrs. Langford, Roper, Davis and Pratt, the ring leaders in the committee of old intercollegiate standbys, who have been working hand and glove with the army and navy authorities the past thirty days in an effort to make the '18 football season a gala one.

They have already secured the sanction of the army and navy heads, it is reported, and of late weeks have been working quietly with the athletic directorates of the big universities in an effort to put their plan over the top.

That they have been successful is evidenced by the awakening of action at Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and the other big universities. A brief week ago matters were at a low ebb all round; now the fur is beginning to fly.

LOOK FOR SPICY SCHEDULE.

Captain Carroll Dunham, adjutant of Harvard's S. A. T. C., is a great sport enthusiast. He wants the early play this Fall to be limited to inter-battalion games, but forecasts a banner climax to the Crimson's season.

Nobody at Cambridge thus far has had anything to say about a possible Yale game next month. But the fact that Pooch Donovan takes hold Friday, and that the practices will be as stiff as in the days of peace, indicates that during November Harvard will doubtless indulge in several big games—winding up with the Yale battle.

Enrollment books were placed at S. A. T. C. headquarters in Apthorp House, marine unit in Randolph Hall, naval unit in Weld Hall and the junior company in University Hall today. Donovan confidently believes that at least 300 men will enter their names.

Donovan will also have charge of the cross-country team, while William Haines has been reappointed rowing coach.

COLLEGE TENNIS STARS IN RADIO TOURNAMENT

With some twoscore contestants hard at it, the Fall tennis tournament of the Harvard Naval Radio School is well under way.

Former court stars from other parts of the country are competing, among them being Stevenson, Arkansas Intercollegiate champion; F. W. Campbell, Pennsylvania intercollegiate title holder; Swanson, schoolboy champion of Indianapolis, and F. C. Campbell, champion of Subiaco College, California.

A silver loving cup for the victorious finalist has been donated by President Henderson of the Netre Trust Company, while prizes will also be awarded the runners-up.

Dundee Is Anxious to Box Jack Britton in Armory A. A. Ring

By RINGSIDE.

Johnny Dundee, duly noted New York lightweight who is coming over for a quarrel with Frankie Callahan at the Arena Tuesday night, October 29, believes he and Jack Britton would get the money for the Armory A. A.

"Let Britton make the same weight for me he made for Benny Leonard in Philadelphia a few weeks ago, 137 pounds," stated Dundee to the writer at the Jamaica race track last Saturday afternoon, "and I'll guarantee to give him just about the best fight he has ever had in Boston."

Dundee never looked better. He has been idle since his last bout with Young Britt at the Arena, and, as a result, his damaged right optic, which bled so profusely in his scrap with Rocky Kansas, has completely healed.

"How much have I been weighing for my battles in Boston of late months?" quized back Dundee. "Round 133, sometimes as high as 135. So, with Britton getting down to 137 pounds he wouldn't be too big for me. Jack made that notch for Leonard and he ought to make it for me."

Dundee's own admission that he has been operating as an out-and out lightweight of late months proves Johnny Munice's claim that the Italian will-o'the'wisp has had some six or seven pounds on Britt in all their recent skirmishes.

The New Bedford boy is never any higher than 128, ringside. So Munice was right, as Dundee himself admits, when he claimed Frankie in a smaller boxing machine than the New Yorker.

10 Years Ago In Sport World

Bill McKinnon of Roxbury had all the better of a fifteen-round bout with Jack Robinson of Chicago at the Standard A. C., Lymansville, R. I., last night, but the best he received was a draw. Bill was the aggressor throughout and gave Robinson a merry trouncing. Patsy Broderick of Providence bested Young Joe Grim in an eight-round semi-final.

* * *

Johnny Dohan, of Brooklyn, and Harry Scroggs, of Baltimore, fought a fast draw at the Maspah A. C., New York, last night.

* * *

Much interest is manifested in the fight between Kid McCoy and Jim Stewart at the National A. C., New York City. McCoy tips the beam at 168 pounds and Stewart will have about forty pounds the better in weight. Philadelphia Jack O'Brien is training McCoy. O'Brien says the "fox" is as good as ever and will hand the fans a surprise.

* * *

Joe Thomas, the famous Californian, before going to Stamford, Ct., to prepare for his bout with Sailor Burke, gives Stanley Ketchel a fine boost. Said the modest Joe: "He's a demon. He hits a terrific crack with that old left paw of his and will drop any man in the world if he connects solid. He banged me on the eye and put a lump as big as an egg. The crack closed my eye and I had a fine time. The next crack I got there sent me down. Watch him give Mr. Papke the time of his young life." (Joe knew what he was talking about).

* * *

Stanley Ketchel has lifted the ban on colored fighters and announced that he'll fight any man in the world, white or black. Manager Joe O'Connor has already entered into negotiations with Sam Langford, and Stanley will meet the crack Eastern scrapper at Jim Coffroth's club, should Ketchel win over Papke on Thanksgiving eve. (Note.—Ketchel beat Papke. Now who remembers if Tham and Ketchel met, and when?) Follow this column for information.

Johnny Thompson, "The Sycamore Cyclone," has been matched to meet Rudy Unholz, the Boer fighter, in a twenty-round contest at the Pacific A. C., San Francisco, October 30. The men will weigh in at 133 pounds at 3 o'clock. Thompson will chase Battling Nelson for a match in case he beats the Boer.

CORBETT'S CORNER

BY JAMES J. CORBETT.

This is the seventh chapter of a series which Mr. Corbett is writing concerning his great fight with James J. Jeffries in 1900. In this series of articles Mr. Corbett reveals to the public, for the first time, some of the dramatic and humorous features of that fight which, up to this time, were known only to his intimates.

"Corbett tried to repeat the punch, but failed, and once more Jeff began rushing. He caught Corbett against the ropes and sent a left to Corbett's wind. Corbett broke from the trap and and sent home two left jabs to the face as he was going away.

"Jeff continued rushing, but Corbett kept well out of range.

Then he elected to dance in at Jeff and side-stepping several solid swings by the champion, Corbett shot home a succession of left jabs. It was Corbett's round.

"Second round—Corbett started after Jeff with the bang of the gong and backed the big fellow around the ring with a volley of lefts. Then, suddenly shifting his attack, Corbett drove a left to Jeff's stomach and, when Jeff failed to retaliate, Corbett shot two more lefts to the stomach and then one to the face. But the blows weren't hurting Jeff. Nor did Corbett seem to be putting his full power into the blows. He seemed merely to be pecking away at the champion. Jeff finally started to rush Corbett, but Corbett side-stepped him and then, with more left jabs, backed Jeff to the ropes. Jeff, in the close fighting, landed twice on Corbett's stomach.

LAUGHED AT JEFF.

"Corbett stabbed Jeff twice in the face with lefts as he broke for the centre of the ring. Jeff followed him and landed a left to the wind as Corbett turned. Corbett swung a right for the head, missed and then danced away, laughing at Jeff's clumsy efforts to catch him. Corbett's round."

And then came the third round—the session of fighting when Jeff put all the power of his body into a blow that crashed into my stomach with the force of a locomotive piston rod. It brought to me greater agony than any I ever experienced in the prize ring.

As the third round began I went at Jeff on the jump and swung a left to his face, but he ducked. Then I tried another left, which landed. Immediately Jeff bored in at me and I backed away from him. Jeff tried to reach me with a long left and then a vicious right, but both punches were short. I kept dancing around just out of Jeff's reach.

After about thirty seconds of action Jeff, still rushing me, left a nice opening. So I stopped going away and jumped in at him, landing twice on the face without a return. I side-stepped a rush by Jeff and then landed twice to the face with lefts and once to the stomach with a right. Jeff tried a left for the head, but it missed. In ducking it I had to back against the ropes. There Jeff lunged at me and started swinging lefts and rights with all the power he had.

TAKES TERRIFIC WALLOP.

Back in the centre of the ring a rally followed. Each of us landed three or four times. Then came a clinch, followed by open fighting. I drove a left to Jeff's head. It landed and seemed to hurt him. In a fury, Jeff swept toward me and I went back to the ropes. Before I could dance away Jeff was upon me and caught me in the stomach with a wallop that carried every ounce of his body behind it.

As the punch landed it shook me from head to heels. No man ever hit me in the stomach with the terrific power that Jim Jeffries put into the blow that night. Bob Fitzsimmons won the title from me with a solar plexus punch. But it was a blow that did not cause me any great agony. It merely knocked the wind out of me and brought to me a choking sensation, such as follows when a man has lost his wind. Fifteen seconds after Fitz hit me I was as good as new again. But the effects of that Jeffries blow lasted a long, long time.

Every Day Enhances Liberty Bond Values

Your Patriotic Duty and Your Personal Interests Will Be Served by Your Subscription

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

Never was there a time when it should be so easy to dispose of Liberty Bonds as to-day.

Instead of lagging in their subscriptions, the people should be eager to acquire all of these profitable bits of paper for which they can by any possible device find the money.

It is usually a poor policy to run in debt—to trade on borrowed money.

But it is very good policy to run in debt and to buy all the Liberty Bonds you think you could pay for in a year.

Most of the national banks are advertising that everyone who can pay 10 per cent., or one-tenth of the total price of any bond purchased, can borrow from the bank the other nine-tenths of the money necessary at 4¼ per cent. interest.

That means that the bond buyer will receive the interest on all the money subscribed and the bank will charge for only the interest which the Government itself pays for the unpaid balance.

Most of the national banks require such loans to be paid, at least a large part, in ninety days, owing to the regulations of the Federal Reserve Bank.

But two of the greatest trust companies in the world—the Guaranty and the Bankers Trust—are generously offering to loan to any person who buys bonds through them A LOAN OF ONE YEAR AT 4¼ PER CENT.

For every new report of American victory in Europe, every additional symptom of impending peace, adds to the value of these Government securities.

When peace is actually attained, when the nation is relieved from the enormous, almost inconprehensible, expenditures which to-day are draining our treasury, the value of these bonds will be materially enhanced.

There will be no more bond issues once the war is over. The rich man or the great corporation seeking blocks of securities with unimpeachable backing cannot turn to the Government for anything new. The present bond issues will have to meet that need, and with that demand their price in the money market will certainly increase.

You will not be able to get four and a quarter per cent. Government bonds at par five years hence.

That is the purely material argument for buying bonds now—the simple appeal to the selfishness of the possible investor. But we think that the loftier appeal to the patriotism and idealism of citizens is the one which meets with the more general response.

The appeal "You lend as they fight" is one to which every American with a spark of patriotic fire or a tint of red in his blood should eagerly respond.

We have in Europe to-day practically two million soldiers. Under arms at home, or about to be called to the colors, are virtually as many more. Every man of these is potentially a fighting man. Whatever service he may now be rendering, or whatever the nature of the corps to which he may be attached, he is liable at any time to be called upon for service in the fighting line.

Shall we be niggardly in supplying the funds to equip these men for their arduous service?

Shall we hoard our dollars in the face of their magnificent willingness to contribute their lives?

Our last bond issue was subscribed by a total of 17,000,000 subscribers. It was a magnificent showing to be made by a nation the total investing community in which had been estimated at fewer than 400,000 persons.

But when we match it against the number of our soldiers it does not seem so impressive. There should be at least five investors to every man under arms. But any arithmetical comparison is futile, as an effort to fix the measure of sacrifice is futile. One and one do not make two when one is a soldier risking all in a mad rush upon the enemy's trenches and the other is a prudent investor buying a 4¼ per cent. bond.

You cannot precisely compare the two—they lack a common denominator.

Yet each in his place plays a necessary part. It is the part now of those of us who must stay at home to buy Liberty Bonds.

We may buy with savings, we may buy on the Government's instalment plan, or we may borrow from the ready banks, but BUY WE MUST.

Three weeks were allowed for completing the subscriptions to the $6,000,000,000 loan. The time is more than half gone, and less than 40 per cent has been subscribed. We must all unite to speed up this pace.

German power is tottering. Is it conceivable that our country, rich, powerful, virtually unscathed as yet by war, will fail to furnish the force that shall bring it down in crumbling ruins?

Our soldiers are everywhere victorious. Can it be conceived for a moment that the nation will fail to furnish all that is needed in order that the fullest reward of their sacrifices may be reaped?

We cannot doubt the answer of our people. If the loan lags now it must be speeded up. And this put in its simplest terms means only that if YOU have not subscribed, YOU must subscribe now. If YOU have subscribed lightly, YOU must subscribe more. If YOU know of one who has not subscribed at all, YOU must get his subscription.

In brief, success or failure in the war for democracy is UP TO YOU.

USING CARELESS SPEECH

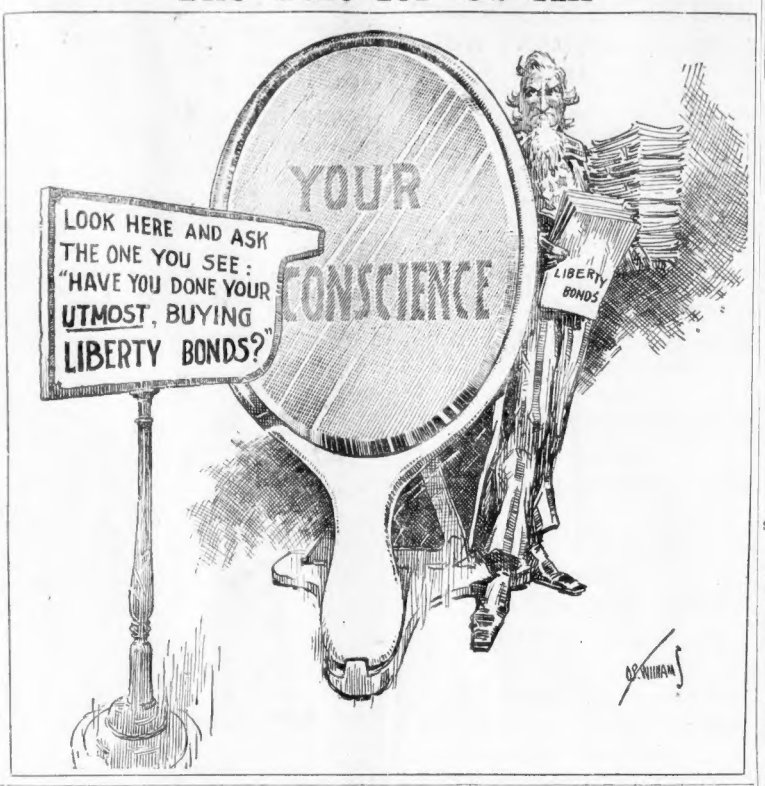
Do you realize how important it is for you to govern your tongue when it comes to making rash statements before young children or impressionable young men and women?

You are naturally extravagant in your speech; you know that you do not in your heart, mean one-half you say; yet you go on in that racy, sketchy way of yours and sacrifice what is and what ought to be for the sake of a good story rather than put a checkrein on your tongue.

What would be the result, then, if Tom or Edna should accept your outlandish, expressed and thoughtless ideas as life-governing principles?

Put a curb on your tongue.

The Test for Us All



Our Plans

By Morton Birge

"We have evacuated the Chemin Des Dames, in accordance with our plans."—German War Office Statement.

"You'll notice in our war stuff," quoth the German High Command,
"That we move on exactly in the way that we had planned.
Of course, it's not apparent to the common Fritz and Hans,
But things are going nicely in accordance with our plans.

"We started out for Paris, but were fortunate to find
Some circumstances on the way that made us change our mind.
Just now it's fixed and settled where we'll make another stand,
But then, this may be altered," says the German High Command.

"If we get out of Belgium—and it looks as though we would—
'Twill be because we plan to for the splendid German good.
We may decide still further—and the prospect now looks fine—
To make a thorough clean-up and retire back to the Rhine.

"We're planning this and planning that, in fact, you ne'er can tell.
We may wind up the whole World War by going plumb to Hell.
In any case, just rest assured, whoever wins this muss,
'Twas in accordance with the plans made long ago by us."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

A Question for Senator Weeks

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

I have read with a great deal of interest your two editorials on the two letters you received, one of which attempted to uphold and the other to denounce the action of the Junior Senator of Massachusetts, the Hon. John W. Weeks, by his vote on the Susan B. Anthony amendment.

Mrs. Susan W. Fitzgerald, an ardent worker for the suffrage cause, makes the statement that Senator Weeks appeared before the Women's City Club, one of the foremost women's clubs of Boston, and promised support of all war measures advocated by our wonderful President, Woodrow Wilson. If such was the case, there are hundreds, yea thousands, who wish to know why he voted against the suffrage amendment which is being clamored for by the people as victory is by the allies.

This amendment had the backing and sanction of the Chief Executive of the country and he personally appeared before the Senate and especially asked that they vote for the resolution as a war measure.

I wish to ask the Junior Senator, through the editorial columns of your very newsy, educational and beneficial paper, to publicly state whether he appeared before this organization and made this statement and then deserted that courageous advocate of humans rights, Woodrow Wilson, and if he did—why?

The argument that the voters of Massachusetts rejected the suffrage amendment by nearly two to one is of little consequence, as that was done two years ago, and America has taken her sword, and Labor her tools, "to make the world safe for democracy" since then. Today the womanhood of America is taking the place of men in every known occupation, except that of going "over the top," and doing their different labors as well if not better than the men did before the war.

This alone is reason enough for the two Senators from Massachusetts, a State that is noted for being a leader in all progressive legislation, voting for the resolution that would give the women the chance to join with the men in electing their lawmakers.

Should the junior Senator fail to give a satisfactory explanation of his vote on this question, and I cannot see how he can do otherwise, I urge every level-headed and loyal voter to ask himself if he would trust his mother with the ballot. If the answer is Yes—then vote for the man who believes the same way, the Hon. David I. Walsh; and if the answer is No—then vote for the man who believes that way, the Hon. John W. Weeks.

FOR HOURS.
I'VE BEEN sitting around.
IN FRONT of my typewriter.
AND EVERY little while.
I'D THINK of something.
TO WRITE about.
AND I'D start.
AND BETWEEN each line.
I'D FORGET it.
AND GO back to Germany.
AND PEACE.
AND PRESIDENT Wilson.
AND GO back again.
TO THE sheet of paper
IN MY typewriter.
AND READ it.
AND TAKE it out.
AND TEAR it up.
AND START again.
WITH A new idea.
OR SOMETHING foolish.
OR SOMETHING sad.
AND WORRY along.
FOR A lot of lines.
AND LOOK down on the floor.
AT THE morning papers.
AND START dreaming again.
ABOUT PEACE.
AND HOW grand it would be.
IF WE could get it.
THE WAY we want it.
AND I have a feeling.
THAT I want to pray.
OR MAYBE yell.
AND I can't tell which.
AND, ANYWAY.
I LOOK back to the paper.
AND WHAT I've written.
AND I say to myself:
"YOU POOR nut.
"SITTING UP here.
"WRITING STUFF like this.
"WHEN THE whole world.
"IS HOLDING its breath.
"AND ITS hand to its ear.
"AND MOTHERS of men.
"ARE LYING awake.
"FOR THE next day's news.
"AND WONDERING.
"WHAT THE day will bring.
"AND IF it may be.
"THAT THE word will come.
"THAT PEACE is here."
AND I take the paper
I'VE WRITTEN on.
AND DRAG it out.
AND TEAR it up.
AND THROW it away.
AND SIT again.
AND THERE isn't a thing.
IN ALL the world.
THAT I can find.
TO WRITE about.
EXCEPTING PEACE.
AND I write of that.
AND AS I write.
IT GROWS so big.
AND GETS to be.
SUCH A wondrous thing
THAT I find myself.
JUST SHRIVELING up.
AND THERE are no words.
THAT I may use.
AND I tear it up.
AND WRITE those lines.
JUST TO fill my space.

I THANK you.

DOWN AND OUT REALLY IS GOOD-BY TODAY

By Winifred Black

THE Down-and-Outer went downtown with me the other day—I wouldn't have missed the experience for the world.

He isn't really a down-and-outer at all; he is just tired of things in general and his own special game in particular, and he has sense enough to rest a while and get his energies together.

But people don't know that, most of them, and so, because he isn't as busy as he was and doesn't make as much fuss about things and isn't in evidence everywhere, they think his time is past and that he will never be of much importance in the world again.

And it is the funniest thing to see the way they act about it.

Who're "They"? Oh, just the regular, everyday people who always hear everything first, and believe it before the first syllable of the news has had time to cool.

The first day it was a little, blue-eyed, baby-faced woman, who is always so sweet and so dear and so sympathetic, and always so ready to do when the one who asks her is not down and out, but up and in it.

Studies in Surprises

She met us at the entrance to the club where she gives luncheons and teas and things. It is much more imposing than a simple apartment as a background, and, whisper, it costs less, if you manage it right, and she knows how to manage it—trust her for that—little Miss Blue-and-Babylsh.

Skimp a bit on the cakes, have plenty of hot water and not too much tea, serve lemons and very little sugar, and there you are, quite a smart affair for next to nothing, and you can always blame it on the service and the club if any one is really hungry.

I always thought Blue-and-Babylsh had lovely eyes—they are so big and so blue and she has such long lashes, curly ones, you know, like the lashes the doll has that should say "Papa" and "Mamma" if you squeezed her just right—but, dear me, they will never look pretty to me again, those blue eyes.

They were all right when I first saw her—she was saying good-by to a very smart person who was just getting into a really grand machine—but when she saw the Down-and-Outer the change was almost startling. Those eyes that had been so soft and luminous were suddenly as cold as ice and as hard as glittering steel.

"How-dy-do?" said Mrs. Blue-and-Babylsh, in a high voice that sounded like water gurgling from the ice pitcher, and before the Down-and-Outer could answer she gave me a sweet smile over her shoulder and a pitying look and swept away.

If he had really been a down-and-outer I should have wanted to go after Mrs. Blue-and-Babylsh and give her a good shaking, but as it was the Down-and-Outer and I had a lovely laugh over it, and then we went on and met the Tired Business Man with the jovial laugh and the shrewd eyes. He was in a great hurry when he saw the Down-and-Outer. I don't think I had ever seen him in such a hurry before.

Finding the Real

The Beauty that I had always thought a heartless girl was delighted to see the Down-and-Outer.

She stopped and asked him all kinds of questions.

"Well," said the Down-and-Outer, "I wouldn't have believed it, I really wouldn't, and I wouldn't have missed it—not for worlds.

"Will you promise me to take this same walk with me one year from today when I suddenly decide to come back?"

"I will, indeed," I promised.

And if I am alive and the Down-and-Outer is alive—and not down and out at all—even in appearance—I surely will.

I like to know something real about the people I meet so casually every day—don't you?

SEARCHING VOLCANOES FOR NEW CHEMICALS

How the necessities of war have turned scientists to a practical study of Nature's vast laboratories of smoking, seething lava, in a search for new chemicals and minerals, is one of the many interesting features in the next

BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER AND AMERICAN

TODAY

Who Will Be the Man? Some One Must Speak Scheidemann, Harden, Who? An Old Man's War.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Through whom, representing Germany, will the United States make peace when the time comes?

The German Chancellor says: "I ask for peace in the name of the German government," leaving out the word "imperial," and all reference to the Kaiser.

The President replies that it will not do. The Kaiser or the Kaiser's men are back of the peace proposal and America will not negotiate.

There is no doubt that Germany, shut in for four years, with crazy Russia at her side, is in desperate straits for supplies. In Bavaria the workers are in revolt, passing resolutions demanding trial by a state court of "even the highest personages," and "the right of German states to govern themselves," which would mean the breaking down of Bismarck's structure.

Hindenburg himself is alleged to have demanded that the President's conditions be met.

Hindenburg is not one to give up a fight if there is anything left to fight with. Had conditions in the German army, lack of material to make ammunition, explain Hindenburg's attitude, according to Washington dispatches.

You have observed, by the way, this is an old man's war. The work has been largely in the hands of men that ordinarily, and in America especially, would be considered past the useful period.

Foch, the great French general, is nearing seventy. Hindenburg is past seventy, and Clemenceau still older, but it is encouraging to the older men and a comment on corporations that formerly refused to hire men past forty. Real work is done by the brain and power of will. They go on growing after muscles get weak and shoulders stoop forward.

What particular German will be the man accepted by the President as having the right to speak for the people of Germany?

Any proposition from the Kaiser we now know will be ignored. If another with authority speaks in his place, the Kaiser will have been put out.

Still, he has at least six or seven million men under arms with autocratic power to use them against anybody who may try to put him out. What individual leader will rid Germany of the Kaiser with his autocratic power over millions of armed men that must obey the order to shoot?

When the Kaiser is out and the people replace his autocracy, who will be the individual able to say to the United States, "I represent Germany and I want peace"?

When the Czar was thrown overboard and subsequently murdered, manifestos came rapidly, one after another, telling who was ruler of Russia and what he planned to do.

One grand duke was to be Czar, but he wasn't. Kerensky came to the top. Every newspaper in America printed his picture. This country sent a commission and one hundred millions of dollars to help the poor Russians to get on their feet politically. That was like a snowflake landing on a hot stove.

Soon the papers were guessing what had happened to Kerensky. He turned up in London, a fugitive. Kerensky, with real courage, tried his best to make a fighting nation out of a mob. He couldn't.

Then came Trotzky, Lenine, the anarchy in which Russians are so busy murdering each other, haven't time to fight the outside world, or raise and sell the food that Germany expected.

When the Kaiser goes down, who will come to the surface and stay long enough to make peace on the President's terms? There must, of course, be some individual, for sixty millions of Germans cannot say, except through some one voice, "We want peace."

Will it be a Scheidemann, the German Socialist, who has shown courage opposing the Imperial government?

Will it be a Maximilian Harden, the bold Jewish newspaperman? In spite of autocracy he has spoken his mind in Prussia during and for years before the war, with extraordinary immunity, as did Tolstoy in Russia.

Will it be some Liebknecht, locked in prison for his criticism of the Kaiser—and perhaps released by social revolution?

There are in Germany millions of men in the Social Democratic party that have been long in rebellion against kaiserism, as were those Germans who came to the United States, following the revolution of 1848, and later.

In a few months every American may be looking at some picture of a man he never heard of and reading underneath that picture the words:

"This man has been selected by the German people, and is recognized by the United States government as authorized to speak for the people of Germany." Meanwhile, BUY BONDS and read good news from Europe.

The President of the United States is a man who knows what he wants and is willing to wait for it.

That lower jaw was not built for nothing.
